CHAPTER-1

Ancient Civilizations (Mesopotamian, Egyptian, Indus, and Chinese)

Students' Learning Outcomes:

After completing this chapter, students will be able to:

Mesopotamian Civilization

- » Explore the importance of primary and secondary sources in knowing about the past.
- » Describe Sumerians and explain how they were different from Mesopotamians.
- » Describe the Code of Hammurabi and why it was created.
- » Describe the basic characteristics of Mesopotamian architecture.
- » Find major trade and occupations of the people of Mesopotamia.

Egyptian Civilization

- » Describe the importance of the role of the River Nile in the development of Ancient Egyptian Civilization.
- » Explain the daily life of people of the Egyptian Civilization, in terms of social structure, religion, scripts, etc.

- » Identify the most influential person in the Government of the Pharaohs.

Describe the purpose of three different chambers inside the pyramid.

Students' Learning Outcomes:

Indus Civilization

- ▶ Describe the early settlements in Mehrgarh.
- ▶ Explain the importance of Indus in the establishment of huge settlements (Mohenjo-Daro and Harappa) of Indus Valley Civilization.
- ▶ Identify some significant characteristics of Indus Valley Civilization, e.g., daily life, agriculture, trade, religion, script, economy, etc.
- ▶ Give reasons for the decline of the Indus Valley Civilization.

Chinese Civilization

- ▶ Describe the basic characteristics of Chinese architecture.
- ▶ Find major trade and occupations of the people of Chinese.
- ▶ Identify some significant characteristics of Chinese Civilization, e.g., daily life, agriculture, trade, religion, script, economy, etc.

Primary and Secondary Sources

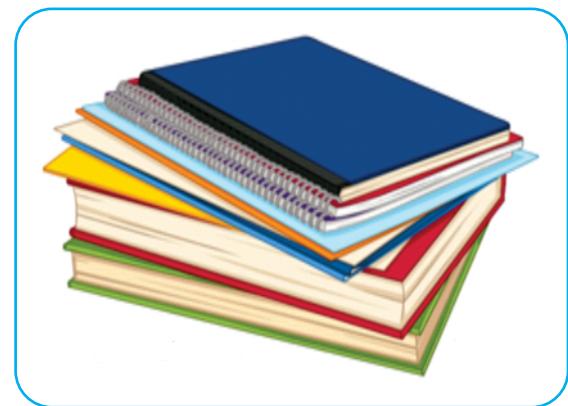

i. Primary Source

A primary source is an original document or other material that has not been changed in any way. Usually it was produced by someone with direct personal knowledge of the events that are described. It is used as an original source of information about the topic. Primary sources are distinguished from secondary sources. Secondary sources are documents based on primary sources.

Primary sources give you direct access to the subject that you're researching or learning about. The type of primary source used depends on the topic of the research.

Examples of primary sources include:

- diaries, correspondences, and logbooks
- creative works, such as art, film or literature
- original documents, such as a birth certificate
- biographies and autobiographies
- interviews, speeches and oral histories
- government data
- statistics
- research reports
- newspaper reports, editorial/opinion pieces

Primary Source

What are primary sources used for?

Primary sources are the foundations of original research. They help to:

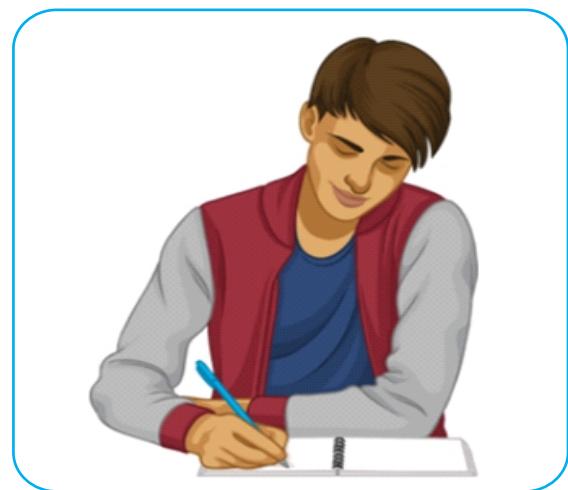

- make new discoveries
- provide evidence for your argument
- give credible information about the topic

ii. Secondary Source

Secondary sources provide second-hand information and often offer explanations for primary sources. These analyze, interpret and restate information from primary sources. These are generally considered to be persuasive. These use commentary, evaluation and opinions to persuade the reader of the writer's argument.

Examples of secondary sources include:

- journal articles commenting or analyzing research

Secondary Source

- textbooks
- dictionaries and encyclopedias
- books which interpret and analyze information, such as academic books
- dissertations (essays)
- reviews, essays and criticisms on creative works, such as art, literature and music

What are secondary sources used for?

Secondary sources help to provide background information or an overview of a topic. These show how other researchers have approached, interpreted and analyzed the topic. These help to:

- learn background information about the topic
- support your arguments and ideas
- contrast your arguments or ideas
- find information you can't access directly

Skill: Activity

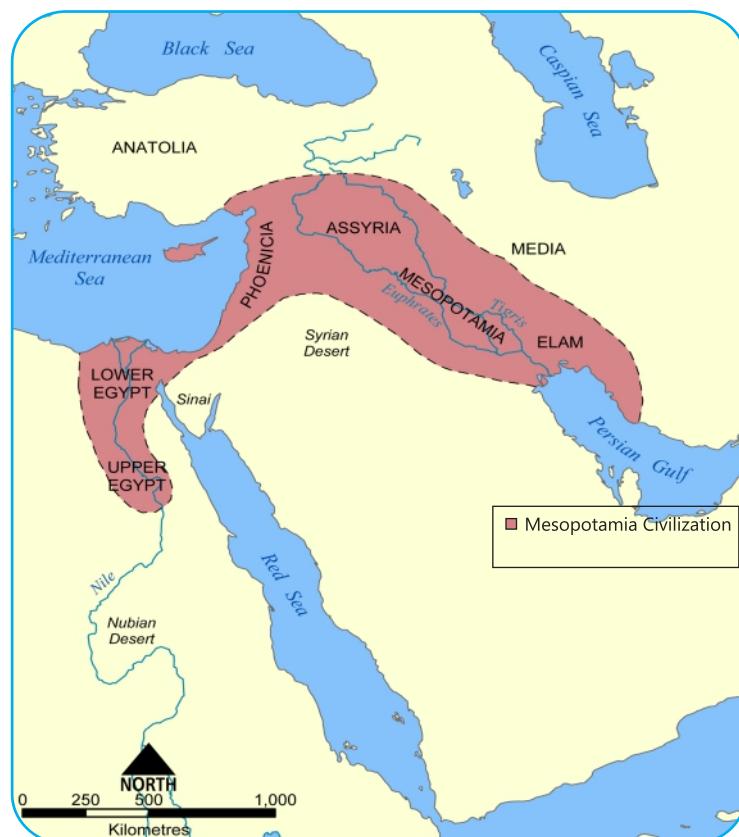

- Analyze primary and secondary sources to learn about the past.

Mesopotamian Civilization

Mesopotamia is an area in south western Asia where the first human civilization emerged. Mesopotamian civilization started in about 4500 BCE.

The people who lived in Mesopotamia were nomads which means that they had no particular home; they moved from place to place. Soon this changed as people began to settle in particular locations.

Mesopotamia soon saw the rise of cities, regions and empires. The facts provide a summary of the history of Mesopotamia from its earliest settlements. There were main empires of the period: the Sumerian, Akkadian, Babylonian, Assyrian and Persian Empires.

The word "Mesopotamia" is formed from the ancient words "meso," meaning between or in the middle. Mesopotamia is a place situated in the middle of Euphrates and the Tigris rivers which is now a part of Iraq.

The civilization is majorly known for its prosperity, city life and its rich and huge literature, mathematics and astronomy.

The people of Mesopotamia found that the soil was good for growing crops, but there was little rain; they built irrigation systems to carry water from the rivers to their fields.

Skill: Activities

- Use an organogram to demonstrate the different aspects of Mesopotamians.
- Find the location of Mesopotamian Civilization in the modern world using a world map.

Daily Life, Education and Games

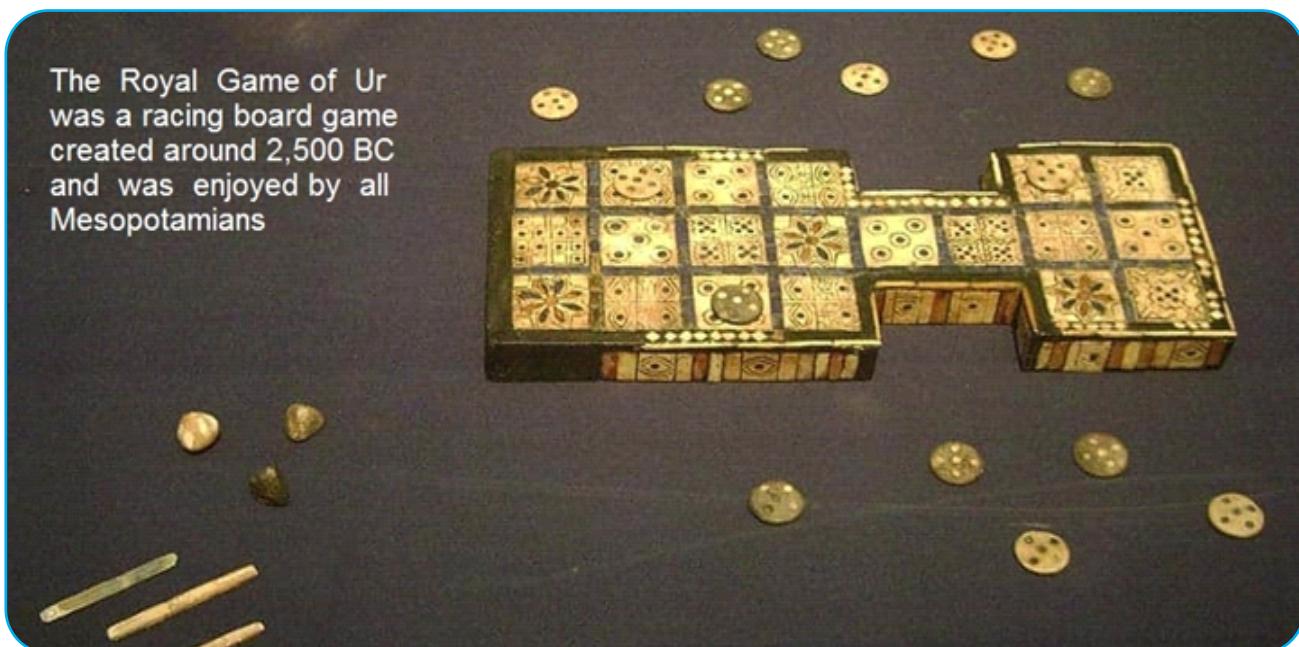

- Daily life of Mesopotamians revolved around the family. Except for kings, most people lived in flat houses made of sun-dried mud bricks. There were usually two storey houses. Children stayed mainly on the first floor. There was a courtyard, a garden and small animals such as chickens. The upper floor was for sleeping, eating and sitting. But if the weather was nice they would eat on the roof.

Ancient building ruins from the Mesopotamia

- School was very limited and expensive, so most people never learned to read or write. Typically, only boys from very rich families or daughters of kings could go to school. The goal of school was to train students to become priests or scribes.

- Paper did not yet exist, so students wrote on clay tablets in a special script called cuneiform.
- Kids in Mesopotamia played a lot of games with their friends or at home with siblings. They played games like spinning tops, jump ropes, hoops and board games. They even played "house" using miniature pieces of furniture and dolls. Families enjoyed quality time together by playing musical instruments. They used string instruments such as harps and flutes.
- Nobles were involved in administration.

- Storytelling was another very popular pastime. The most famous story is called 'The Epic of Gilgamesh'. It was about a superhero called Gilgamesh. It was probably based on a real-life king.

Do You Know?

- The Epic of Gilgamesh is an epic poem from ancient Mesopotamia, regarded as the earliest surviving notable literature and religious text.

Religion

- Mesopotamian religion refers to the religious beliefs and practices followed by the various peoples living in Ancient Mesopotamia. It dominated the region for a period of 3500 years until the 1st century BCE (about two thousand years ago).
- Mesopotamian religion was polytheistic (worship of more than one god).
- Each city had its own god. At the center of the city was a large temple or ziggurat built to that god. This was the place where the priests lived and made sacrifices. Some of the ziggurats were huge and reached great heights. They looked like step pyramids with a flat top.

god of Babylon

Difference between Sumerians and Mesopotamians

- Sumer was a region in southern Mesopotamia where the ancient Sumerian Civilization flourished. Mesopotamia was the region between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. Mesopotamians were the names of people and their culture, which were lived in Mesopotamia region.

Sumerian People

Mesopotamian People

- ii. Sumerians made many inventions like first form of writing, a number system, the first wheeled vehicles, sun-dried bricks, and irrigation system for farming. They are known for their innovations in language, governance, architecture and many more. The role of Mesopotamian in the development of Mesopotamia is very limited.
- iii. Sumerians were the names of people and their culture who lived in Sumer region.

Skill: Activities

- Investigate reasons how Mesopotamia became the cradle of civilization.
- Investigate the significant advancements of Mesopotamians that are still used in the modern world.

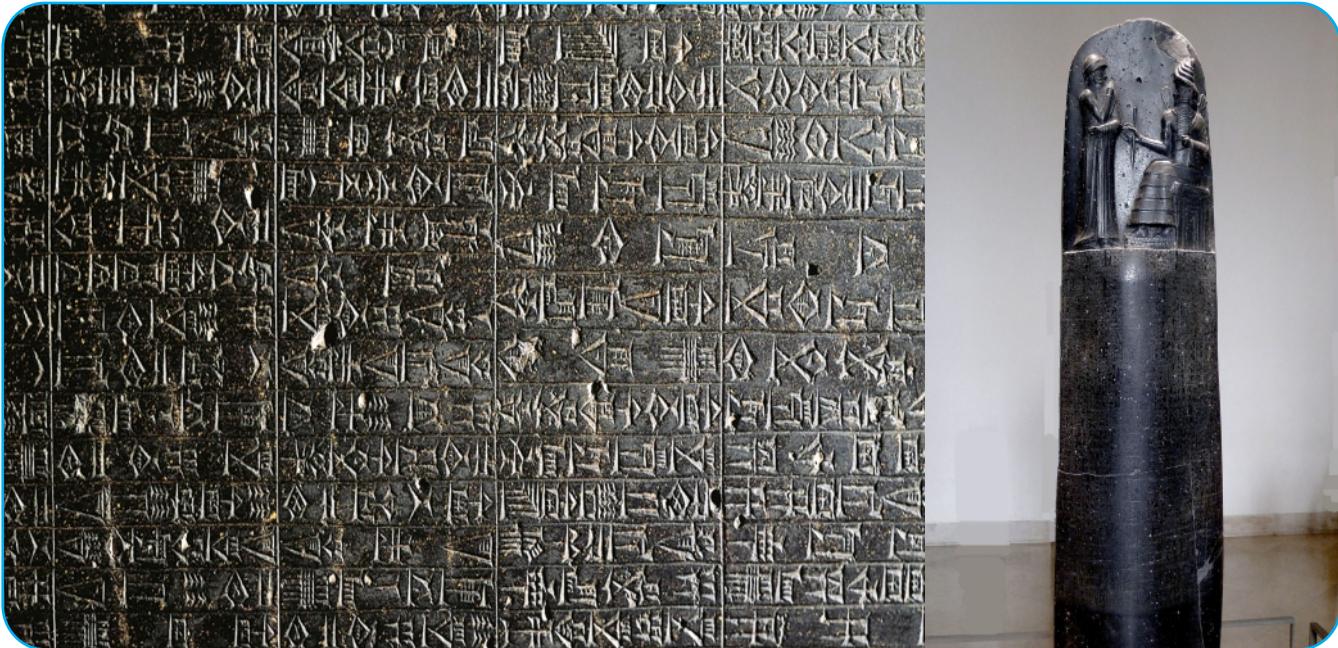

The Code of Hammurabi

Hammurabi was one of the best-known kings of the Babylonian Empire. Under Hammurabi, Babylon gained more control over Mesopotamia.

- One of his most important achievements was the 'Code of Hammurabi'.
- This code is the first written record of laws in human history.
- People were reminded of the need to obey the laws.

Code of Hammurabi

- These laws were on public display for everyone to see on stone pillars.
- The code was created and written so that people may respect each other.
- They behaved in a decent manner.

Skill: Activities

- Explore how Hammurabi used his code of rules for the common people.
- Explore if there were some other civilizations that were present at the time of the Mesopotamian Civilization.
- Enquire how Mesopotamia was far advanced than other civilizations.

Characteristics of Mesopotamian Architecture

Artisans were important people in ancient Mesopotamia as the objects they created were useful for everyday living.

Ancient Mesopotamian houses were built of mud brick or of reeds.

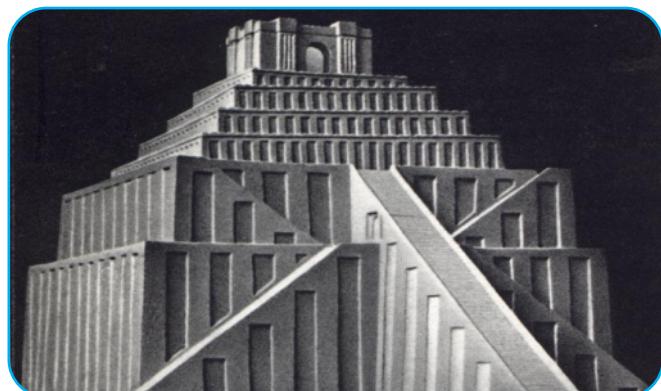

Most People lived in reed houses near the rivers and in wetland areas.

In drier areas, people built homes of sun-dried mud bricks.

Mud brick homes had one or two rooms with flat roofs.

The material used to build homes in Mesopotamia were similar to the ones we use today.

The main materials used were mud brick, mud plaster to cover the walls, and wood to build doors and frame windows.

Mesopotamian Architecture

Major Trade and Occupations of Mesopotamian Civilization

Trade

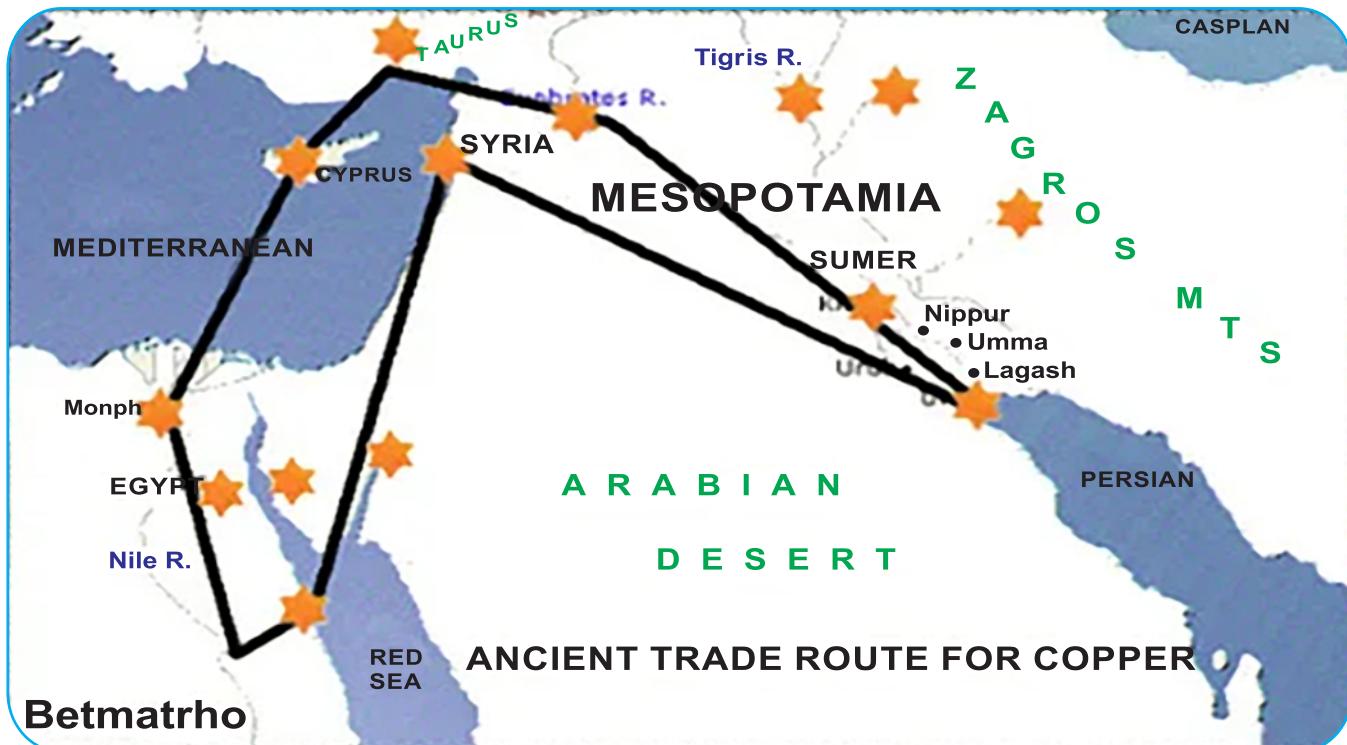

Trade had always been important in Mesopotamian Civilization.

Large scale trade was pioneered in Mesopotamia. Both luxury goods and raw material circulated within Mesopotamia and were brought in from outside as far away as India, Africa and Greece, etc.

The people of Mesopotamia traded in exports and imports of goods.

Their important exports were grain, cooking oil, pottery, leather goods, jewelry, etc.

They imported Egyptian gold, Indian ivory and pearls, Arabic copper and Persian tin, etc.

Skill: Activity

- Enquire how the trade of Mesopotamian people was different from the trade of today.

Occupations

Important occupations of Mesopotamian were:

- Farming
- Craft artists
- Weavers
- Tradesmen
- Fishermen
- Transporters
- Soldiers
- Stone carvers
- Leather workers
- Brick makers
- Potters
- Carpenters

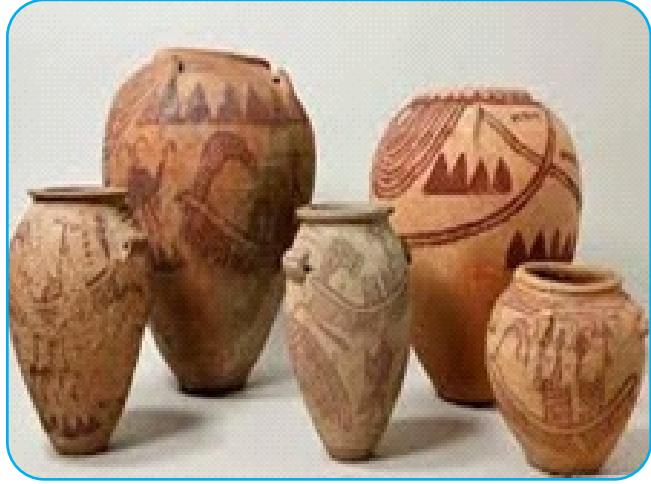

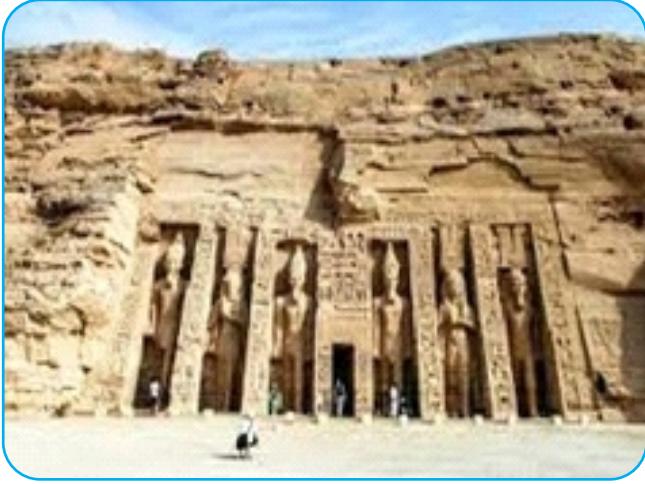

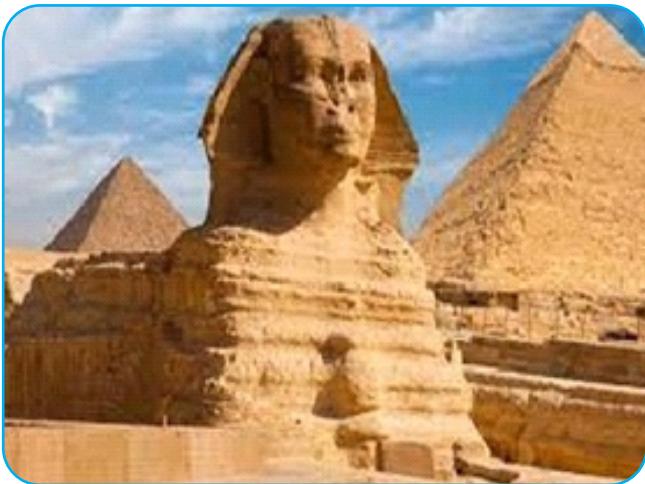

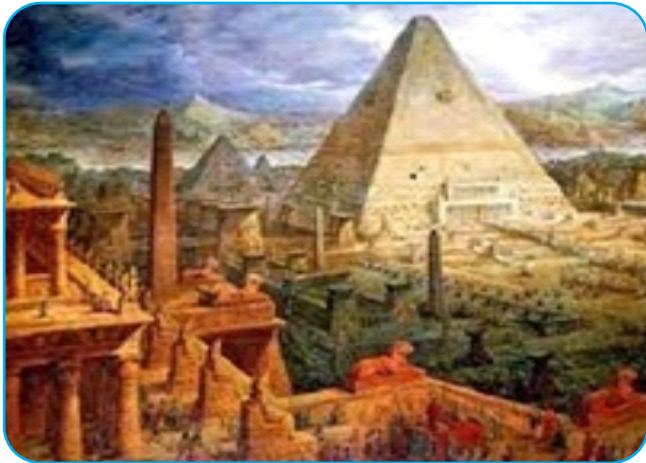

Skill: Activities

- Analyze reasons for creating laws, and consequences of not following them.
- Enquire how common people can participate in law-making.
- Explore the importance of scientific and technological advancement for the development of a nation taking the historical example from the inventions made by Mesopotamians.

Egyptian Civilization (River Nile Civilization)

- Egyptian Civilization also called River Nile Civilization developed in around 4000 BCE.
- The civilization of ancient Egypt began in the Nile River Valley of Africa.
- It is one of the most famous civilizations in history.
- The Egyptians kept written records using a writing system known as 'hieroglyphics'. Government and religion were attached in ancient Egypt.
- The ancient Egyptians built huge pyramids, temples, palaces and tombs, etc.

Different Aspects of Egyptian Civilization

Skill: Activities

- Use an organogram to demonstrate the different aspects of the Egyptian people.
- Find the location of Egyptian Civilization in the modern world using a world map.
- Discover other civilizations that existed during the period of the Egyptian Civilization.

Role of the River Nile

The River Nile played a vital role in the establishment of the ancient Egyptian civilization. The most important thing the Nile provided to the Ancient Egyptians was fertile land. Nile is one of the longest rivers in the world, about 6650 km (4130 miles) long.

This River flows through many different African countries including Egypt, Sudan, Ethiopia, Uganda, Congo, Kenya, and Burundi. There are two major tributaries that feed the Nile, the White Nile and the Blue Nile.

Nile River

Most of Egypt is desert, but along the Nile River the soil is rich and good for growing crops.

The three most important crops were wheat, flax, and papyrus.

Wheat was the main staple food of the Egyptians. They used it to make bread. They also sold a lot of their wheat throughout the Middle East helping the Egyptians to become rich.

Papyrus was a plant that grew along the shores of the Nile. The Ancient Egyptians found many uses of this plant including paper, baskets, rope, and sandals.

Flax was used to make linen cloth. This was the main type of cloth used by the Egyptians.

The River Nile was also used for transportation throughout the Empire. Boats constantly travelled up and down the Nile carrying people and goods.

The Nile River also provided a lot of building material for the Ancient Egyptians. They used mud from the riverbanks to make sun-dried bricks. These bricks were used in building homes, walls, and other buildings.

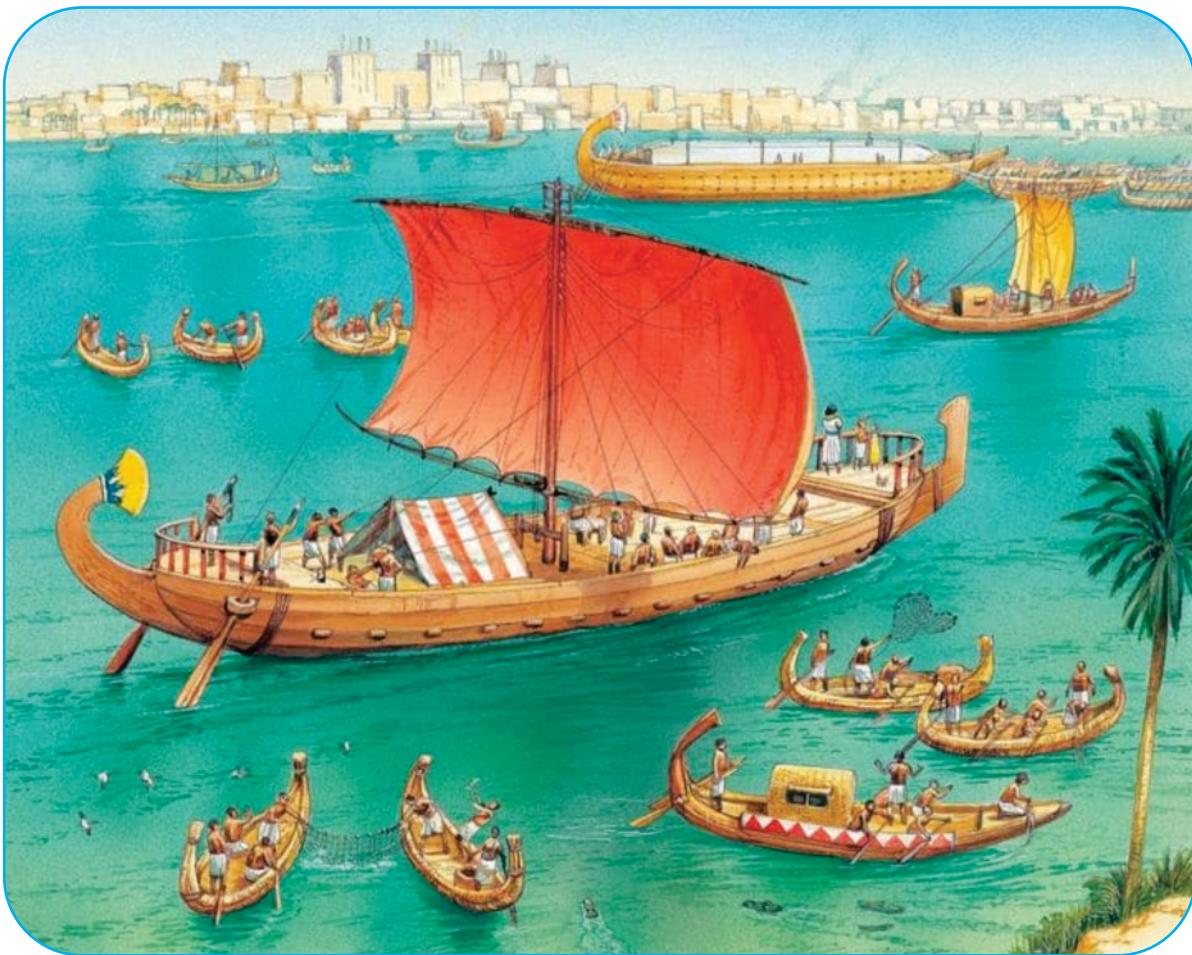

Papyrus Plant

Skill: Activities

- Enquire about the most interesting features of the Egyptian Civilization.
- Compare the differences between Egyptian and Mesopotamian Civilizations.
- Justify with examples that common people in Egyptian Civilization had no civil rights.

Transportation in Nile River

Social Structure, Religion, and Scripts of the Egyptian Civilization

Social Structure

The ancient Egyptians had a very specific and well-organized social structure. There were six classes of society:

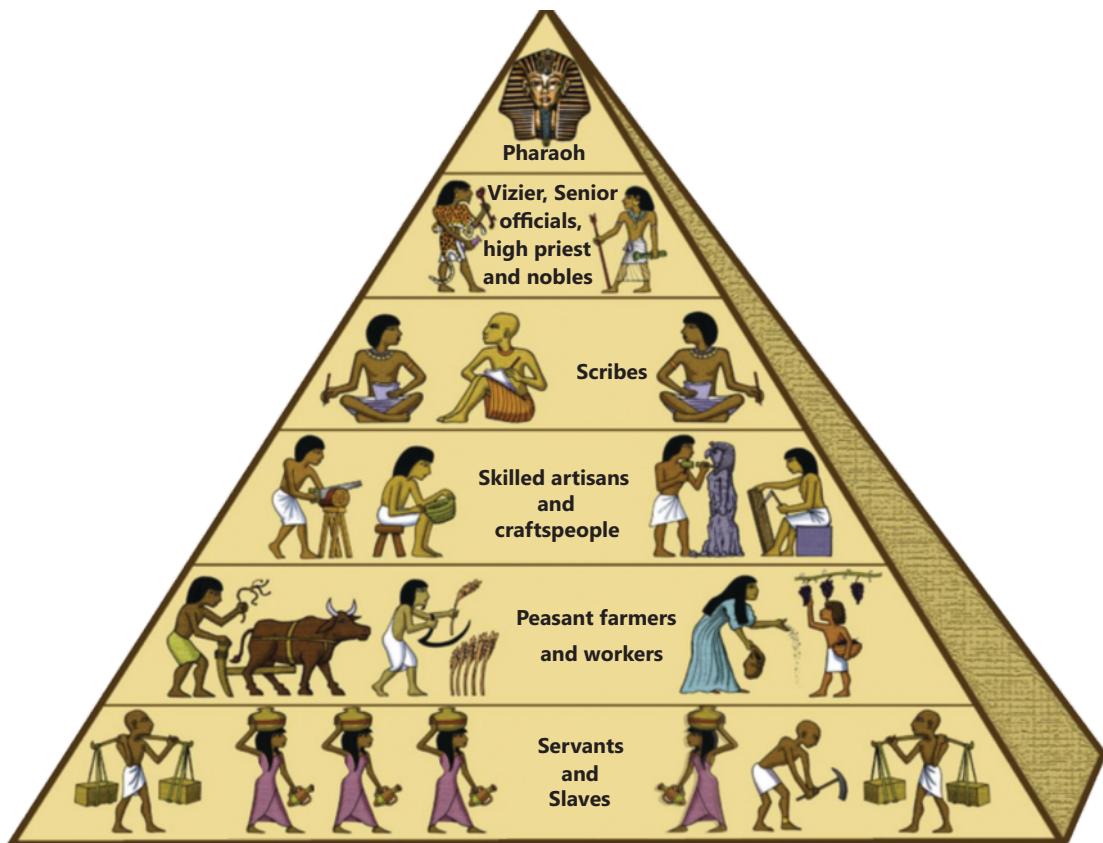

1	Pharaoh or king
2	Government officials (vizier etc.)
3	Nobles and priests

4	Scribes and soldiers
5	Artisans, craftsmen and merchants
6	Peasants and slaves

Scribes were important people in Ancient Egypt as they were the only people who knew how to read and write. They belonged from wealthy families and took years of training to learn the complex Egyptian drawings.

Priests and Priestesses were responsible for the temples and held religious ceremonies.

Most of the people were farmers. There were a wide variety for craftsmen.

Egyptian Social Classes

The common people used to take bread. They also had fruits, vegetables, lamb, and goats for food.

- People had clay ovens to cook and usually used dishes made of clay.
- The average family lived in a village of sun made mud houses.
- The houses were fairly small with few windows or furniture.

Houses had flat roofs that the people would sleep on in the summer when it was too hot inside.

They included carpenters, weavers, jewelers, leather workers, and potters.

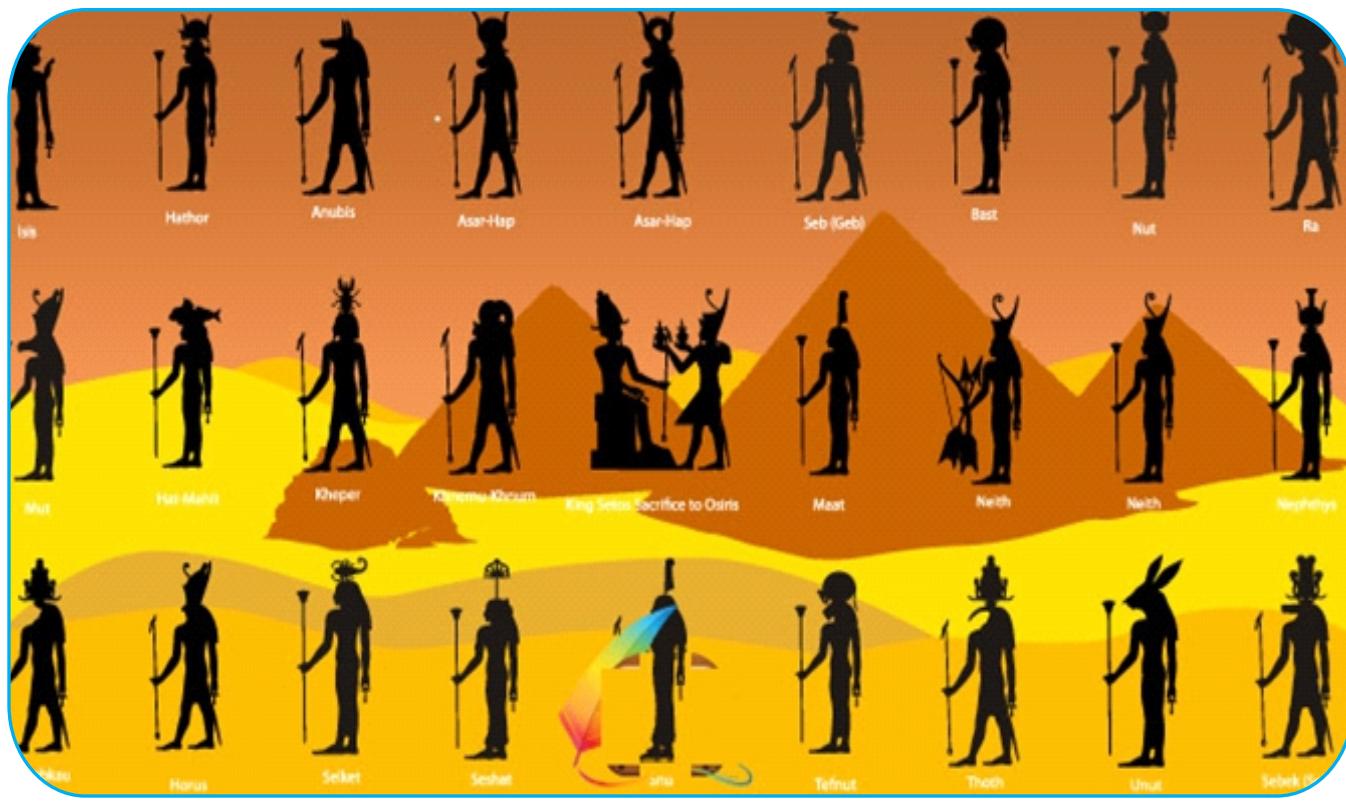

Religion

The people of ancient Egypt developed their religion based on gods and goddesses and the powers that they had. Some people supported gods to follow their profession.

In local villages, an important part of their beliefs and practices was to follow one god only.

The people in villages worshiped at shrines. Their gods were often represented by animals such as lions, cats, rams and crocodiles, etc.

The ancient Egyptian religion contained more than 1500 gods.

The Pharaoh was believed to be part man and part god. When the Pharaoh died, Egyptians believed he became a god.

Other beliefs and practices that the ancient Egyptians believed in was the life after death. They had many different rituals which included mummification. They preserved the bodies of their Pharaohs as long as possible after death to allow their spirit to have a place to reside.

The body was wrapped in cloth containing jewels and amulets.

In the tomb of the deceased, they also placed food.

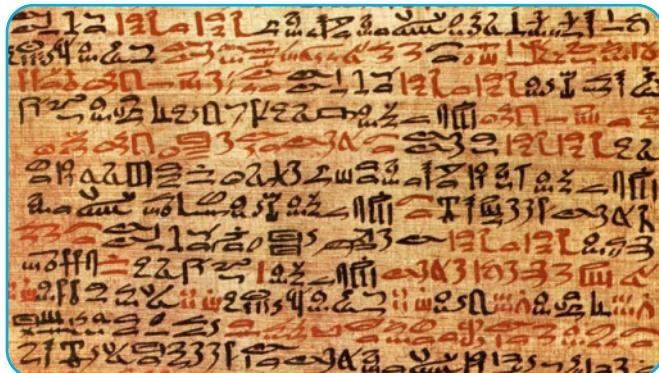

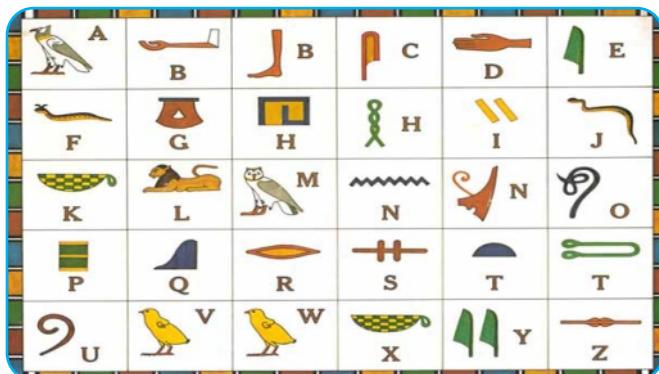

Skill: Activities

- Read relevant books, search from the Internet, and gather information about the Egyptian's concept of life after death.
- Differentiate between the burial of common people from Pharaoh.

Scripts

The creation of a written language was one of the Egyptians' finest achievements. The first Egyptian writing was in a picture form called hieroglyphics.

The pictures, which stood for sounds of words, were cut or painted on the walls of tombs and temples, and were delicately coloured in red, yellow, green, black, and blue. Hieroglyphics were in use by 3100 BCE.

Different Styles of Egyptian Writing 'Hieroglyphics'

The ancient Egyptians used the distinctive script known today as hieroglyphs for almost 4,000 years.

Hieroglyphs were written on papyrus, carved in stone on tomb and temple walls.

It used to decorate many objects of cultic and daily life use.

The Most Influential Person in the Government of the Pharaohs

In Ancient Egyptian Civilization, the Pharaoh was at the top of the social hierarchy. Next to him were the viziers, the executive heads of the bureaucracy.

Under them were the high priests, followed by royal overseers (administrators) who ensured that the different district governors carried out the Pharaoh's orders.

Government was ruled first and foremost by the Pharaoh.

The pharaoh owned all of the dynasty's land and made all its laws. His chief responsibility was maintaining harmony in his empire and acting as intermediary between his subjects and the goddess.

Some Ancient Egyptian Pharaohs

The Pharaoh was the supreme leader not only of the government, but also of the religion.

The Pharaoh could not run the government all by himself. He had a hierarchy of rulers and leaders below him who ran different aspects of the Government.

The vizier was the highest official in ancient Egypt to serve the Pharaoh (king). Vizier was important leader of the Government under the Pharaoh.

Purpose of three different chambers inside the Pyramid

A pyramid is a structure whose outer surfaces are triangular. It converges to a single step at the top. It makes the shape roughly a pyramid in the geometric sense. The base of a pyramid can be trilateral or any polygon shape. As such, a pyramid has at least three outer triangular surfaces.

Pyramids were built for religious purposes. The Egyptians were one of the first civilizations to believe in an afterlife. They believed that when the physical body expired, he/she enjoyed eternal life.

Inside the Great Pyramid are three major Chambers (rooms): the King's Chamber, the Queen's Chamber, and the Grand Gallery.

Small tunnels and air shafts lead to the chambers from the outside.

The King's Chamber is at the highest point in the pyramid of all the chambers. It contains a large granite sarcophagus. The Grand Gallery has a large passageway.

Vizier

Pyramids

Skill: Activities

- Enquire why the Egyptians built pyramids full of gold.
- Enquire why the great pyramids were designed in a triangular conical shape.

Early Settlements in Mehrgarh (Balochistan)

Mehrgarh was an ancient settlement in South Asia. Its remains are located in Balochistan, Pakistan on the Kacchi plain near the Bolan Pass. It is the west of the Indus River valley. This site is between the present-day cities of Quetta, Kalat and Sibi. It covered the period from 7000 BCE to 2500 BCE. Mehrgarh is one of the earliest known sites that show evidence of farming and herding in South Asia.

Mehrgarh Civilization Ruins

Little is known about the religious beliefs and practices of the Mehrgarh Civilization. Many things like pottery, mud-brick ruins, as well as human and animal bones are found.

Do You Know?

- Mehrgarh was discovered in 1974 by an archaeological team headed by the French archaeologist Jean-Francois Jarrige and his wife, Catherine Jarrige.

Importance of Settlements in Indus Valley Civilization

Mohenjo-Daro and Harappa

Indus Valley Civilization lasted from 3300 BCE to 1300 BCE. The large cities of this civilization were Mohenjo-Daro and Harappa. At its peak, the Indus Valley Civilization may have had a population of over five million people. Some facts about settlement are given below:

1. Archaeologists discovered the remains of the Indus Valley Civilization and began excavations during the 1920s.
2. Main cities of Indus Valley Civilization are Mohenjo-Daro and Harappa in Pakistan.
3. Most people lived in small villages and were farmers, craftsmen, hunters, fishermen, builders and scribes, etc.

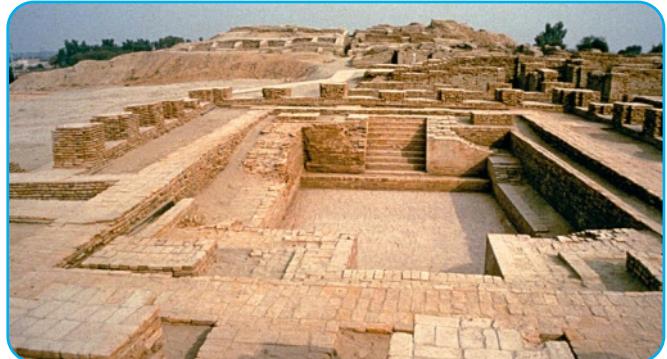

Indus Valley Civilization Map

4. The River Indus and its tributaries created a huge flood plain. The land was very fertile, and this allowed early people to grow several types of crops.
5. Crops grown by the people included cotton, wheat, peas, mustard, grapes, dates, melons, sesame and pulses, etc. The people who lived in the Indus Valley were the first to grow paddy, cotton and weave cloth.
6. The people stored their grain in granaries.
7. The people used a standardized system of weights and measures. Even the bricks, they used were manufactured to a standard ratio.
8. The two cities were very advanced, with streets built on a grid pattern and with an efficient system of wells, drains and sewers. The cities show clear evidence of town planning with broad streets and efficient access to water, drainage and sewers in even the smallest houses.
9. Kiln-baked bricks of regular size were used for construction. Cities were divided into different zones with a fortified citadel containing baths and other communal buildings separate from the part of the city where people lived and worked.

10. Animals such as goats, cows, sheep and buffaloes were domesticated and other animals were probably hunted. Dogs, cats, monkeys and peacocks may have been kept as pets.

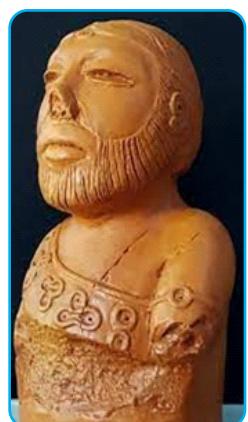

Ruins of Indus Valley Civilization

11. Indus Valley people traded with ancient Mesopotamia. They exported cotton cloth, exotic animals, copper and ivory. Imports included metal products, ores and shells.

12. Pottery industry was very popular among the Harappans.

13. Although no evidence has been found of kings or priests, it is clear that the cities must have been well governed.

14. Only a limited number of weapons have been discovered. It seems the people of this civilization led peaceful and prosperous lives.

Priest-King

Skill: Activities

- Use a timeline to identify the time of the Indus Valley Civilization.
- Read relevant books, visit local museums, search from the Internet, to gather information about life in Indus Valley Civilization.
- Find the location of the Indus Valley Civilization in the modern world using a world map.
- Enquire about the functions of the seals used in the Indus Valley Civilization.
- Explore the structure of cities of the Indus Valley Civilization.
- Enquire about the function of the Great Bath in Mohenjo-Daro.
- Compare the trade of Indus Valley people with the trade done today.
- Compare the lifestyle of the Indus Valley people with the people in Pakistan.

Characteristics of Indus Valley Civilization

1-Daily Life

Indus Valley people spent a lot of time outside. Most people had small homes which were also used as workshops.

The Indus people needed river water to drink, wash and to irrigate their fields.

Farmers lived together in villages which grew over time into large ancient cities of Mohenjo-Daro and Harappa.

Archeologists believe that the people of the Indus Valley used camels and elephants to get around, and had wheeled carts pulled by oxen for transporting goods.

Children were engaged in assisting their parents in farming and animal care. Some time in the day, they might play with carts or pet animals.

2-Agriculture

The economy of Indus Valley Civilization was based on agriculture. Farming was important to the Indus Valley Civilization. People ran water channels from rivers to the fields.

The Indus people were among the first to grow cotton and use it to make cloth. They also might have been the first people to raise chickens.

Indus Valley farmers planted winter crops, such as wheat, barley, peas, lentils, linseed and mustard. In summer, they grew millet, sesame and cotton, etc.

Wheeled Cart

Agriculture

3- Trade

The Indus people were specialized groups of potters, copper and bronze workers.

The merchants of the Indus Valley carried their trade far beyond their frontiers of the empire and established contacts with people of other civilizations. Gold, silver, copper, lead-ore and jade were imported.

Evidence is found of trade contacts between the Indus people and Mesopotamians, Sumerians, Egyptians and other people. People used large number of weights of different sizes.

Trade

Lapis Lazuli

Unearthed ornaments and the accessories made out of seashells, pearls, and beads were also traded.

The people even made Terracotta Pots and painted them to trade. Coloured gemstones such as turquoise and lapis lazuli were also sold by them.

4- Religion

It is thought that there was no proper religion in the initial phase.

Archaeologists have discovered symbols and artwork that depicts a great father and mother figure that may have been their principal gods.

Seals to support the evidence of the Indus Valley gods

There are many seals to support the evidence of the Indus Valley gods.

Some seals show animals which resemble gods. Other seals depict a tree which the Indus people believed to be the tree of life.

The Sun was regarded as one of the greatest gods.

5- Script

The Indus Script combined both word signs and symbols with phonetic value.

Scripts of the Indus Valley Civilization

This type of writing system is known as "logo-syllabic", where some symbols express ideas or words while others represent sounds.

This script is regarded as pictographic since its signs represent birds, fish and a variety of human forms.

Decline of Indus Valley Civilization

We do not know why this civilization came to an end, but a number of possibilities have been suggested:

- 1- One of the main reasons is climate change. The people were dependent on the heavy rains or monsoons to water their crops. Over time, the monsoons seem to have gradually moved East and patterns of settlement seem to show that people followed them.
- 2- Another possibility is that an earthquake caused one of the major river in the area to divert its course and eventually dried, again depriving the people of a vital water source.
- 3- It is also possible that invaders forced the people to move on.

Skill: Activities

- Investigate the difference between the houses of the Indus Valley Civilization and the houses built in the modern world.
- Discover the famous landmark of Indus Valley Civilization.
- Analyze reasons for the demise of the Indus Valley Civilization.
- Evaluate the most significant contribution that Indus Valley has made to the modern world.
- Infer why so many toys have been discovered in the Indus Valley Civilization.
- Justify that Indus Valley people did not learn the warfare nor developed their trade, and therefore, were easily defeated by Aryans.

Chinese Civilization

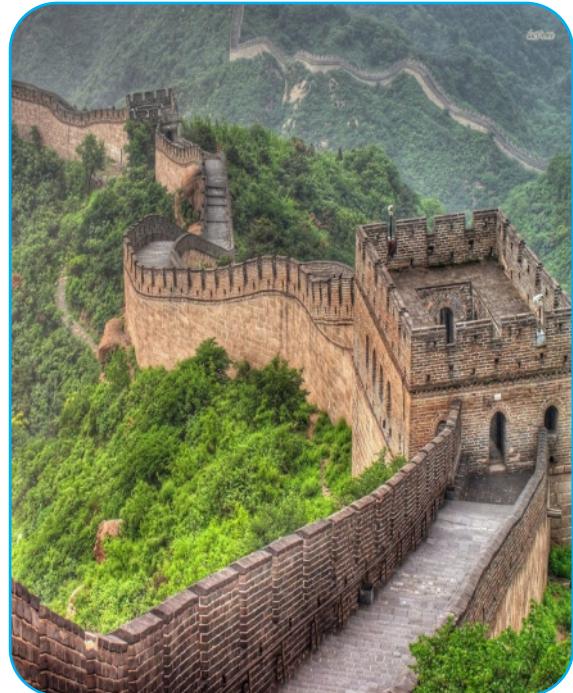

Ancient Chinese Civilization was one of the oldest and longest lasting civilizations in the history of the world. Today, China is the most populous country in the world.

The history of Ancient China can be traced back over 4,000 years. Ancient China starts in 2070 BCE and ends in 221 BCE, Imperial China starts in 221 BCE and ends in 1912 CE, and Modern China takes us from 1912 CE to the present day.

Many rivers played a role in Ancient China which flourished agriculture. Yellow River Valley was the birth place of ancient Chinese Civilization.

Shang Dynasty Map

The Great Wall of China

Ancient Chinese Civilization flourished on the eastern part of the Continent of Asia.

In early ancient China, many people worked at farming, but it was not an easy life.

Arts and crafts have a long history in China. Thousands of years ago, the Chinese were some of the first people to use silk, jade, bronze, wood, and paper to make art. The artistic writing called 'Calligraphy' was invented in China. Silk was discovered in 2700 BCE in China.

Many different emperors ruled Ancient China. The Shang and Zhou were famous Dynasties of Ancient China. People invented many different things that are in use today like the compass and fireworks. They had extravagant temples and even built the Great wall of China over 2000 years ago. Emperor Qin Shi Huang ordered construction of the Great Wall of China around 221 BCE. It is said that as many as 400,000 people died during the wall's construction, many of these workers were buried within the wall itself.

Skill: Activities

- Use a timeline to identify the time of the Chinese Civilization.
- Read relevant books, visit local museums, search from the Internet, to gather information about life in Chinese Civilization.

Basic Characteristics of Chinese Architecture

Architecture means art and science of designing and erecting buildings. Ancient Chinese architecture was categorized into three styles

i. Imperial Architecture

There were certain distinct features which were solely reserved for buildings that were built for Chinese Emperors. These features were yellow roof tiles and dragons.

Imperial Architecture

Yellow colour has always been the imperial colour. However, Temple of Heaven is an exception. Its rooftop is of blue colour which symbolizes the sky. The second feature is the Chinese dragons which symbolizes the Chinese nationality, and it was only used on imperial architecture.

ii. Commoner's Architecture

The homes of commoners, bureaucrats, farmers had a different pattern. The center of the building was a shrine for deities and ancestors which would also be used during festivities. On the two sides of the shrine were bedrooms for elders. The two wings of the building including the living room, the dining room and the kitchen were for the junior members.

iii. Religious Architecture

Buddhist architecture followed the imperial style. A Buddhist monastery had a front hall with the statue of Bodhisattva. This was followed by a great hall having statues of the Buddhas. Accommodations for monks and nuns were at the two sides.

Buddha

Major Trade and Occupations of the People of Ancient Chinese

Ancient Chinese traded goods such as silk, spices, tea, ivory, cotton, wool, and precious metals. Groups of camels, called caravans, travelled west across the rest of Asia, carrying Chinese silk and other goods, including spices, tea, pottery, etc. The Silk Road took its name from China's most successful export-silk. The Chinese exported fine silk cloth to Asia and Europe.

Production of Silk

Silk Dress

There were four major professions in Ancient China. Those professions were scholars, farmers, artisans, and merchants. The majority of the people in Ancient China were peasant farmers. Although they were respected for the food they provided for the rest of the Chinese, they lived tough and difficult lives. The typical farmer lived in a small village of around 100 families.

Skill: Activities

- Compare the trade of Chinese people with the trade done today.
- Compare the lifestyle of the Chinese people with the people of Egyptian.
- Investigate the difference between the houses of the Chinese Civilization and the houses built in the modern world.
- Discover the famous landmark of Chinese Civilization.

Characteristics of Chinese Civilization

1- Daily Life

The home, just like today, was the center of the family's life. Women took care of the home while men worked outside the house. Women, men, and children of the peasant classes all worked in the fields. Chinese homes differed, like anything else, depending on one's social class and how much money one had. In an ideal Chinese home, three generations (grandparents, parents, and children) of the same family lived under one roof. The head of the household was the grandfather or eldest male.

Daily Life of Ancient Chinese Civilization

2- Economy

Ancient China had a rich economy that was based on agriculture, trade and the exchange of money. The great majority of the people of Ancient China lived in farming villages. They were carrying out a host of tasks to grow their crops, sowing, ploughing, weeding, harvesting and storing. For centuries, the basic unit of currency in China was the bronze or copper coin. Ancient China was also a pioneer in the concept of taxation.

Ancient Chinese Coins

3- Agriculture

The majority of the people in Ancient China were farmers. The typical farmer lived in a small village of around 100 families. They worked on small family farms. Although they had plows and sometimes used animals like oxen to do the work, most of the work was done by hand. Rice and millet were the two main crops grown in Ancient China.

Farmers had to work for the Government for about one month each year. They served in the military or worked on construction projects like building canals, palaces, and city walls. Farmers also had to pay a tax by giving the Government a percentage of their crops.

4- Trade Goods

Silk was first produced in China as early as 3,000 BCE. Different goods like silk, tea, salt, sugar, and spices, etc. were included in Chinese trade.

Use of Silk Road for Trade Goods

5- Religion of Ancient Chinese

Confucianism, Taoism, and Buddhism were the three main religions of Ancient China. They have individually and collectively influenced ancient and modern Chinese society.

6- Script of Ancient Chinese

The script on the bones is the first type of writing the Chinese used. The script is pictographic, meaning pictures are used to represent concepts and words. Ancient Chinese writing on oracle bones is called Jiaguwen. Dazhuan is the name of the script on Bronze. It may be the same as the Jiaguwen.

- i. Mesopotamian Civilization started in about:
(a) 4500 BCE (b) 5000 BCE
(c) 5500 BCE (d) 6000 BCE
- ii. The River Nile flowed in:
(a) Mesopotamia (b) Iran
(c) Egypt (d) Syria
- iii. Silk was discovered in China in:
(a) 2300 BCE (b) 2700 BCE
(c) 3100 BCE (d) 3500 BCE

- iv. The large cities of Indus Civilization were Mohenjo-Daro and:
- (a) Taxila (b) Attock
(c) Hyderabad (d) Harappa
- v. Classes of society in Ancient Egypt were:
- (a) Four (b) Five
(c) Six (d) Seven

Q.2 Give short answers of the following:

- i. What is meant by primary and secondary sources of information?
- ii. Where is an archaeological site of Mehrgarh?
- iii. Who ordered to construct the Great Wall of China?
- iv. What type of writing system was used in Indus Valley Civilization?
- v. What was Code of Hammurabi?

Q.3 Write the answer of the following in detail:

- i. What do you know about archaeological site of Mehrgarh? Describe.
- ii. Highlight the major trade, architecture and occupations of Mesopotamians.
- iii. The River Nile has great importance in the development of Ancient Egyptian Civilization? Discuss.
- iv. Describe the social structure, religion, and scripts, etc. of Egyptian Civilization.
- v. Explain the importance of Indus in the establishment of huge settlements (Mohenjo-Daro and Harappa) of Indus Valley Civilization.
- vi. Describe the characteristics of Indus Valley Civilization, e.g., daily life, agriculture, trade, religion, script, economy, etc.
- vii. Describe the basic characteristics of Chinese architecture, major trade and occupations of the people.
- viii. Compare the Mesopotamia Civilization with Indus Valley Civilization.

Learning Activities

The Teacher will:

- i. Use a timeline to locate the period of Mesopotamian Civilization, Egyptian Civilization, Indus Valley Civilization and Chinese Civilization.
- ii. Use some sources of information to gather data and information about the Mesopotamian Civilization, Egyptian Civilization, Indus Valley Civilization and Chinese Civilization.
- iii. Use a world map to help students locate the civilizations.
- iv. Support students in making a model of Egyptian Pyramids.
- v. Generate a discussion to help students differentiate the Egyptian from the Mesopotamian Civilization.
- vi. Use some sources of information to gather data and information on life in Chinese Civilization, and share with class for further discussion.

Critical Thinking

Critical thinking is a mode of thinking about any subject, content, or problem. Thinker improves the quality of his or her thinking by skillfully analyzing, assessing, and reconstructing it. Critical thinking is self-directed, self-disciplined, self-monitored, and self-corrective.

Critical thinking happens when children draw on their existing knowledge and experience, as well as on their problem-solving skills, to do things like: Compare and contrast, explain why things happen, evaluate ideas and form opinions and understand the perspectives of others.

Critical Thinking Questions

- i. Which empire existed before the Babylonian Empire in Mesopotamia?
- ii. Who was the real Tutankhamun (Pharaoh) in Ancient Egypt?
- iii. When were dead bodies first mummified?
- iv. Was Cleopatra an Egyptian?
- v. What were two main cultures in Indus Valley?

- vi. What led to the end of Indus Valley Civilization?
- vii. How did Ancient China impact the world today?

CHAPTER-2

Persian, Greek and Roman Civilizations

Students' Learning Outcomes:

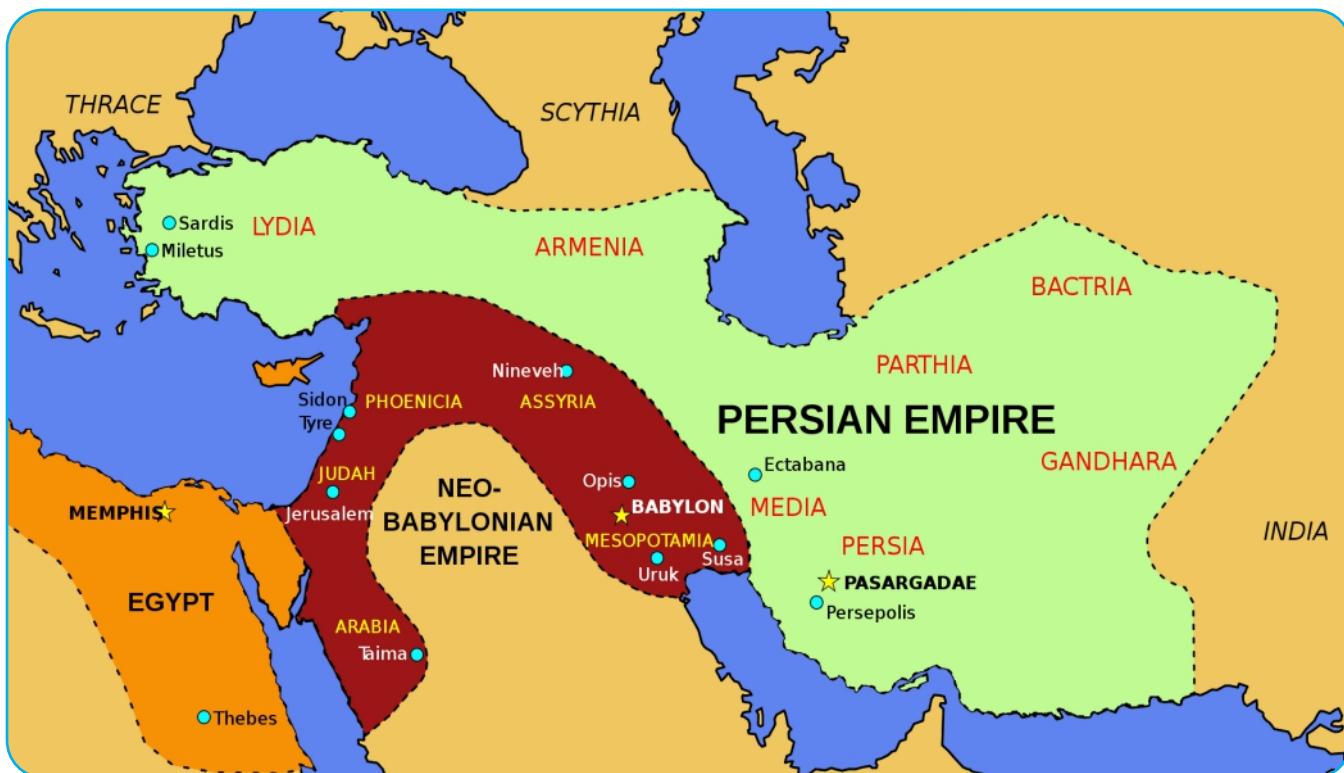

After completing this unit, students will be able to:

- » Describe when, and how, the Persian, Greek and Roman Civilizations were formed.
- » Analyze the daily life, and social customs of Ancient Persian, Greek and Roman Civilizations.
- » Identify the connection between Greeks and Romans.
- » Describe who Alexander was, and why he was called Alexander the Great.
- » Enlist significant victories of Alexander.
- » Outline the reasons for Alexander's plans to conquer India.
- » Identify the relationship between Athens and Spartans.
- » Describe how Rome developed into a republic.
- » Compare the architecture of Greeks and Romans.
- » Enlist some of the contributions of the Persian, Greek and Roman Civilizations to the world.

Ancient Persian Civilization

The Persian Civilization was one of the largest civilizations in the ancient world. It started as a collection of nomadic tribes. They raised goats, sheep, and cattle on the Iranian Plateau. This empire was founded by Cyrus the Great in 550 BCE. Cyrus was a leader of one of those nomadic tribes. They first took control of the Middle East after the downfall of the Babylonian Empire. The Persian Empire is also known as the Achaemenid Empire. They created the World's first ever human rights charter. It lasted from 550-331 BCE.

Ancient Persian Empire in 500 BCE

The Persian Empire was vast, stretching from Anatolia (Turkey) and Egypt across to the north of India and Central Asia.

The capital city of the Persian Empire was Persepolis which is situated in present day Southern Iran.

In the Persian Civilization, a technology known as Yakhchal was invented. It was quite helpful in preserving foods. Persian people are also credited with building the earliest known vertical axis windmills for grinding grain and pumping water.

They were the first people to establish the regular routes of communication between different

They were the first people to establish the regular routes of communication between different continents.

Cyrus the Great, allowed the people to speak their own languages and practice their own religions after being conquered. Many new roads were constructed during the Persian Civilization and also the world's first postal service was developed. The Persian Empire was characterized by the establishment of extensive trading networks.

The Persian Empire had a new religion, Zoroastrianism. Zoroastrianism is known as one of the world's oldest monotheistic religions. It was once the official religion of Sassanid Persia and played an important role in Achaemenid times.

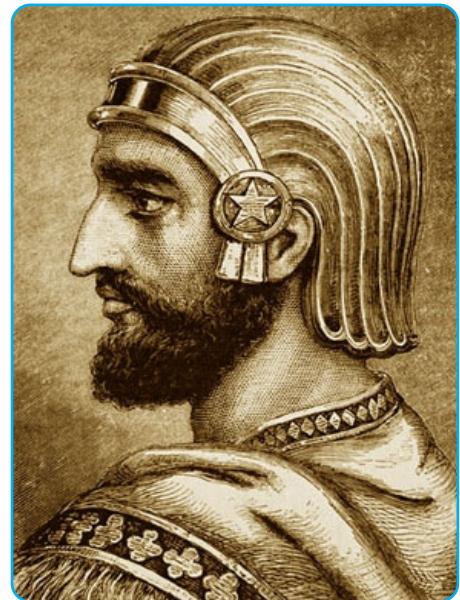

Cyrus the Great, led a large grouping of different Persian tribes to defeat another tribe called the Medians. After this battle, Cyrus led his army to major conquests.

Cyrus the Great, was not the typical ancient leader. He is known for his respect of different tribes and peoples. For example, Cyrus told the people that if they worked and paid tax in his kingdom, he would give them the freedom to live according to their own beliefs and customs. The Persians believed in worshipping only one god called Zoroaster.

Cyrus defeated the Lydians of western Anatolia. Later in 539 BCE, Cyrus's army defeated the Babylonian army to gain most valuable city for his empire. Cyrus had not yet conquered Egypt. He left this task to his son Cambyses who attacked and destroyed the Egyptian army in 525 BCE.

The traditional men's garment included the Shalwar, and Jameh combination, often with a wide belt called Kamarband, from which English gets the word "Cummerbund". Headdresses were also worn by men in traditional wear, known as the Sarband. Long robes and loin cloths were also worn by women and men in Persia.

After the death of Cambyses, Darius the Great, or Darius I, became the new leader of the empire. He had to deal with a series of uprisings in areas that had been conquered by Cyrus, but he managed to re-establish control.

Cyrus the Great

Ancient Persian Dress

Darius the Great, created a new form of government to control his empire. He established 20 different provinces called satrapies. They were led by a Governor called a satrap who collected tax and maintained law. Darius the Great, appointed the satrap and he also nominated a military commander for each region to help keep order in his empire.

Darius the Great, had a massive royal road network available to him. This network had roads of around 12900 km (8000 miles) in total. It was crucial for connecting the empire and keeping it under control.

The Persian Royal road was highway started from Sardis in West Turkey and ended at Susa in Iran.
The highway built by Darius-I (522-486 BCE).

Darius the Great, built a highway connecting the Persian Empire from Susa to Sardis. His aim was to ensure smooth and rapid communication across the vast empire. The distance between the western and eastern borders was around 2700 km. He used his postal service to keep close contact with all the provinces. On each road, there were postal stations where couriers would change horses as letters made their way to the king.

Finally, in 331 BCE, a new empire builder, Alexander the Great, conquered the Persian Empire.

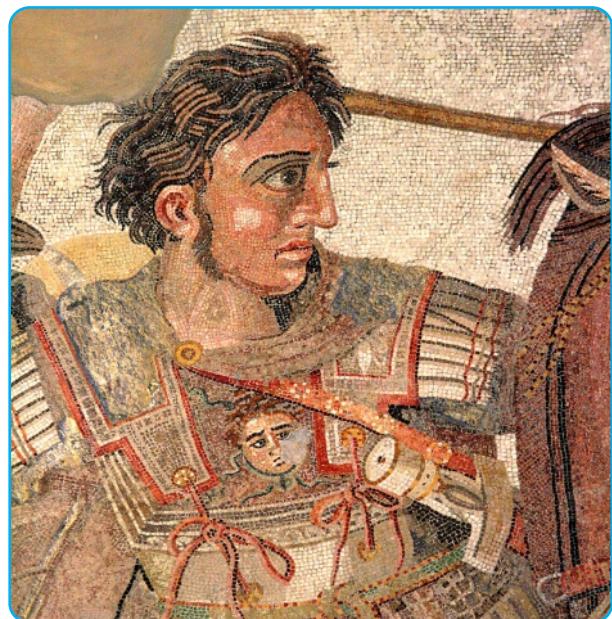

Brief Timeline of the Persian Empire

Date	Event
550 BCE	Cyrus II came to power and was soon attacked by the King of Media. Cyrus defeated the opposing kings and conquered Lydia.
539 BCE	Cyrus captured Babylon.
529 BCE	After invading India, Cyrus died in a battle.
522 BCE	After the death of Cyrus, his son, Cambyses came into power, and died in 522 BCE. Then Darius claimed the throne by defeating Bardiya (presumably Cambyses' brother).
490 BCE	The Persian Wars (490-479 BCE). The Greeks and Persians battled for territory for several years.
485-359 BCE	Leaders came and went including Xerxes and Artaxerxes.
331 BCE	The end of the Persian Empire. After Darius III took over, Alexander the Great of Macedonia invaded. After losing three battles with Alexander, Darius was defeated in 331 BCE and was murdered in 330 BCE.

Greek Civilization

Ancient Greece was a civilization that dominated much of the Mediterranean thousands of years ago. At its peak under Alexander the Great, Ancient Greek ruled much of Europe and western Asia. The Greeks came before the Romans and much of the Roman culture was influenced by the Greeks.

Ancient Greece formed the foundation of much of western culture today. Everything from Government, philosophy, science, mathematics, art, literature, and even sports was impacted by the Ancient Greek.

Periods

Historians often divide up the history of Ancient Greek into three periods:

1. Archaic Period

This period ran from the start of Greek Civilization in 800 BCE to the introduction of Democracy in 508 BCE. This period included the start of the Olympic Games and Homer's writing of the Odyssey and the Iliad, Ancient Greek epic poems.

2. Classical Period

This is the time that many of us think of when we talk about Ancient Greek. Aristotle, Socrates, Plato, Euripides, and Pericles, etc. were key people of Greece.

Athens was governed by a democracy. The great philosophers like Socrates, and Plato arose. There were wars between Sparta and Athens during this time. This period ended with the rise of Alexander the Great in 323 BCE.

Homer, a Greek Author

3. Hellenistic Period

The Hellenistic period lasted from the death of Alexander the Great, until 31 BCE when Rome defeated Egypt in the Battle of Actium. The name Hellenistic comes from the Greek word "Hellas", which is the original word for Greek.

Athens and Sparta

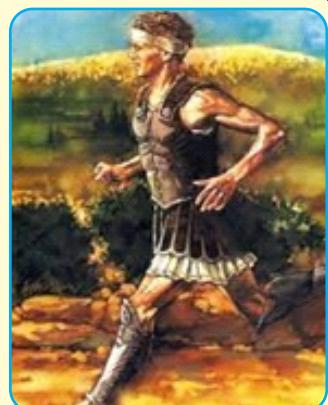

Athens and Sparta were the two main city-states that ruled much of Ancient Greece. They were often rivals and fought each other in the Peloponnesian Wars. At other times, they united together in order to protect the Greek lands from invaders. The cultures of the two cities were very different. Sparta was almost entirely focused on war and how to fight, while Athens focused on the art and learning.

Facts about Ancient Greek

Pheidippides was a Greek hero who ran about 240 km (150 miles) from Marathon to Sparta to get help against the Persians. After the Greeks won the war, he ran 40 km (25 miles) from Marathon to Athens to announce the victory. This is where the Marathon Race gets its name.

The Greeks invented the yo-yo which is considered the second oldest toy in the world after the doll.

Pheidippides

Clothing for both women and men consisted of two main garments, a tunic (either a peplos or chiton) and a cloak (himation or toga). Both women and men wore sandals, slippers, soft shoes, or boots, although at home they usually went barefoot.

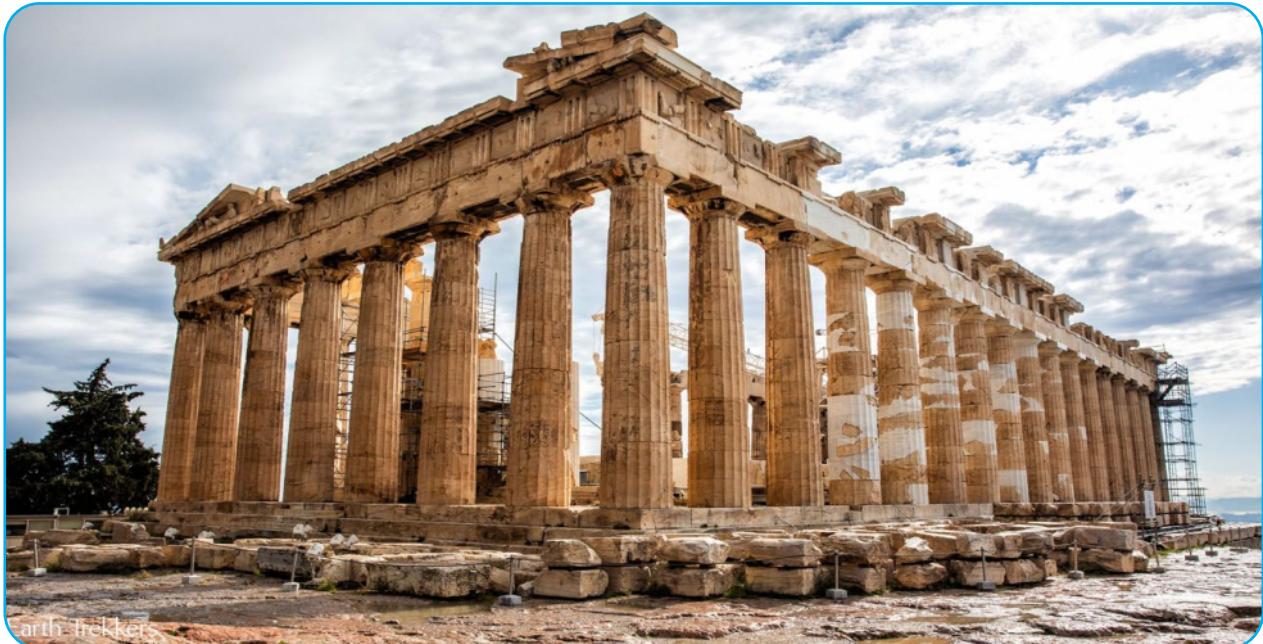

Greek's society was similar to the society that most of us enjoy today because it was full of rich culture. This means that Ancient Greece could enjoy exotic foods, good music, and read literature, just as we do today.

The daily life of an Ancient Greek was very similar to our lives today. They lived in highly organized cities, where they could go see a play or a sporting event, or attend a number of different schools, or could join the army and become a soldier.

Do You Know?

- Olympic Games, athletic festival that originated in Ancient Greece, revived in the late 19th century.

Greek society was also governed much like ours is today. Most early cities were called city-states, which had their own Government. The head of the Government (called the Polis) was located in the center of the city, which usually surrounded the acropolis, which was a high area that held a temple and religious shrines.

Greek Temple, the Parthenon

Greek cities also had an Agora, which was a central marketplace where people could go to shop, perform business transactions, or meet other people and socialize. These were a lot like shopping malls or marketplaces today. Both Greek men and women were the citizens of the state. They could enjoy privileges like protection from violence.

Athens was one of the biggest cities in Ancient Greece. At the height of the Athenian Empire, there lived around 200,000 people. Most of the people in Ancient Greece had jobs much like we do today. Many people were farmers, who sold or traded their fruits and vegetables at markets in order to get what they needed to take care of their family.

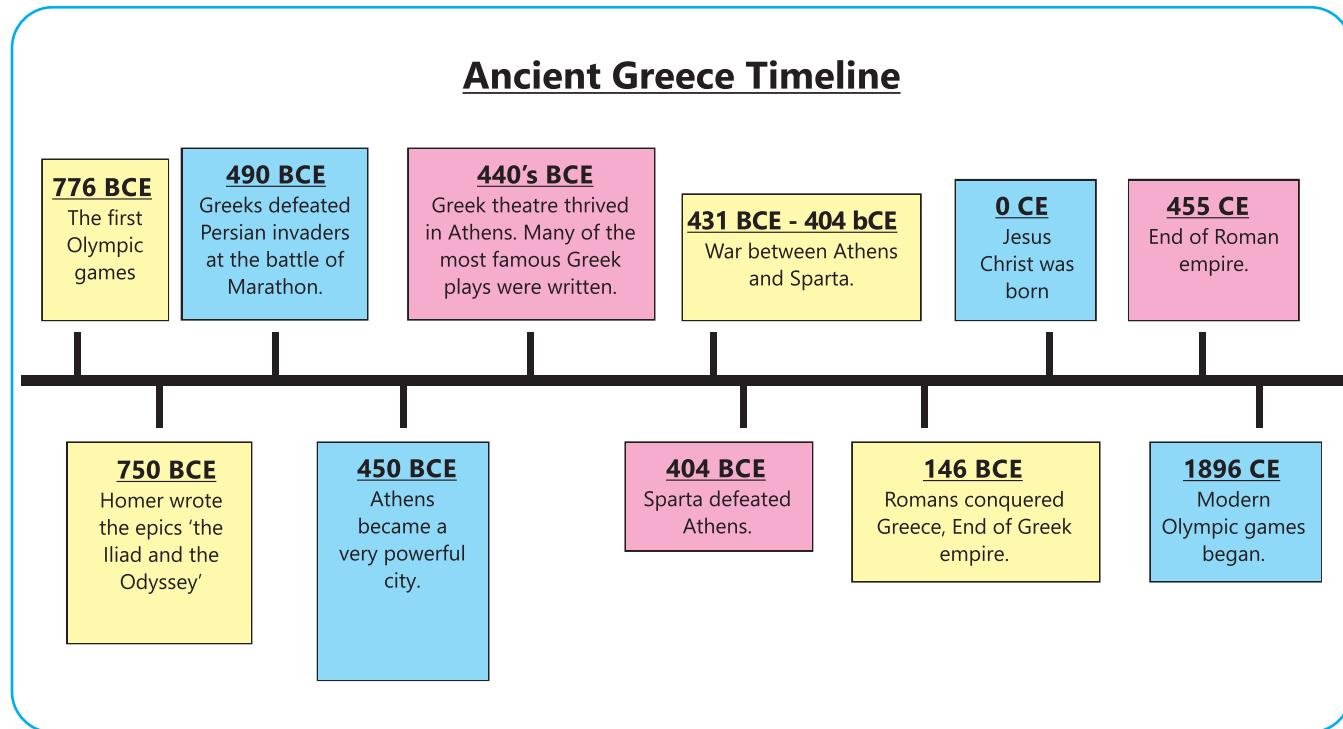

There was also a wealthy class of Greeks, who could afford to send their children to schools. Some of these schools were like Plato's Academy, where they could learn about philosophy and intellectual reasoning. Other schools were specialized, like schools for painting or sculpture.

Plato's Academy

Stable food supply, social structure, system of Government, religious system, highly developed culture, advances in technology, highly developed written language were main characteristics of Ancient Greek Civilization.

There was also a set of skilled craftsmen in Ancient Greek. These artisans created beautiful sculptures, decorated the inside walls of houses with paintings. Other craftsmen made pottery, coins, and jewelry, etc.

Roman Civilization

The Ancient city of Rome was the centre of Roman Civilization. The Roman Empire was based in what is now Europe. Ancient Rome was a powerful and important civilization that ruled much of Europe for nearly 1000 years. The culture of Ancient Rome was spread throughout Europe during its rule. As a result, Rome's culture still has an impact in the western world today.

The achievements of the Romans influenced the languages, literature, laws, methods of Government, roads, and buildings of all of western Europe.

Ancient Rome can be divided into two main periods. The Roman people established a republic in about 509 BCE. The republic became an empire in 27 BCE. That empire lasted for almost 500 years, until the 4th century.

Do You Know?

- Rome was founded in 753BCE by its first king, Romulus. Romulus had a twin brother called Remus. Rome grew into a rich and powerful city during the next few hundred years.

Ancient Rome made many lasting contributions to world culture. But the Romans also absorbed the culture of the people they conquered. For instance, the Romans took many ideas about art from the ancient Greeks. Romans also worshiped many Greek gods, though they gave them new names. Later, Rome adopted Christianity, a religion from the Middle East.

Painting, sculpture, and other forms of art were important to the Romans. Architects built huge buildings that were central to Roman life. One of the most famous buildings left by the Ancient Romans is the Colosseum, a huge amphitheatre in the center of Rome.

Roman writers wrote history, comedy, tragedy, and poetry. From Latin, the Ancient Roman language, many other languages later developed. These languages, known as the Romance languages, include French, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, and Romanian. People today use the Latin alphabet to write these and other western languages, including English.

The first settlers of Rome were people known as Latins, and the region around the city was called Latium. According to legend, twin brothers named Romulus and Remus founded Rome in 753 BCE. Shortly before 600 BCE, warriors from Etruria, a region north of Rome, attacked the city. The warriors, called Etruscans, conquered Rome.

Rome grew steadily under Etruscan kings. It became the largest and richest city of the Italian peninsula. In about 509 BCE, the Romans forced the last Etruscan king out of the city. Rome then became a republic. This meant that the Roman people elected the Government.

The legend of Romulus and Remus

Republic

The most important Roman leaders were called Consuls. There were two consuls. Assemblies, or groups of adult male Roman citizens chose both consuls. At first the consuls had to be patricians, or members of upper-class families.

Roman Republic

An important group called the Senate gave advice to the consuls. The members, called senators, were patricians. They met in a building in the Forum, an area of Rome that was the center of public life. The Senate grew more powerful over the years.

Plebeians or Common People

Most Romans were not patricians but plebeians, or common people. The plebeians staged an uprising in 494 BCE. They gradually won more power. By 367 BCE, one of the two consul positions was set aside for the plebeians.

Rome suffered some setbacks as it slowly expanded its territory. In about 390 BCE, a northern group called the Gauls took over the city. They would not leave until the Romans paid them a large amount of gold. Another group called the Samnites defeated the Romans in 321 BCE. In general, however, Rome's conquests could not be stopped. By 275 BCE, Rome had forced the Greeks to give up their colonies in Italy.

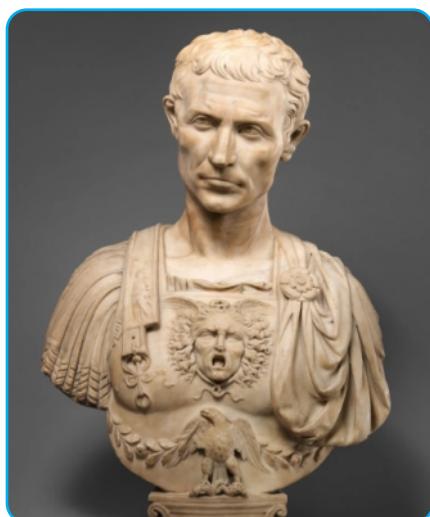

By 260 BCE, Rome's last remaining rival in the western Mediterranean was the city of Carthage, in north Africa. For more than a century, the Romans fought Carthage for power. It took three wars called the Punic Wars before the Roman forces totally destroyed Carthage in 146 BCE.

Rome then turned to other areas, including Sicily, Spain, Macedonia, Greek, and Asia Minor (now Turkey). Governors called Proconsuls managed most of the conquered lands. They had great power. The Romans taxed the conquered people heavily. They also enslaved many conquered people. The Romans put these captives to work on farms and as personal servants in cities. Slaves were used in Rome until about the 3rd century.

Roman Empire

In about 133 BCE, Rome entered a period of unrest and civil war. Peoples in Italy rebelled against Rome's strict rule in 90 BCE. During 73-71 BCE, a gladiator or professional fighter, named Spartacus led an army of run away slaves in a war against Rome. Rome defeated both of these rebellions.

Meanwhile, Rome continued to expand its empire. The most successful General was Julius Caesar. He won victories in far-off areas and then took power in Rome. However, his enemies assassinated him in 44 BCE. This set off another period of civil war.

Julius Caesar

Augustus Caesar

Emperor Tiberius

Peace finally came under the leadership of Julius Caesar's grandnephew Octavian. Octavian defeated his rivals for power, including the Roman General Mark Antony and the Egyptian Queen Cleopatra, by 30 BCE. He was crowned Rome's first emperor in 27 BCE. He was known as Augustus Caesar. During Augustus's rule, the emperor gained absolute control over the state and came to be worshipped like a god.

Two centuries of peace and progress followed. The empire's frontiers expanded all the way to Britain and the Arabian Peninsula. The Romans built roads, bridges, and aqueducts, or water pipes, throughout their vast empire.

The emperor Tiberius ruled from 14 to 37 CE. During this time, the Roman Government in Palestine put Jesus to death. Some of Jesus' followers, called Christians, later set up a community in Rome. At first the Romans did not agree with the Christian religion. They mistreated and killed many Christians. But in 312 CE, the emperor Constantine I became a Christian himself. Christianity eventually became the state religion of the Roman Empire.

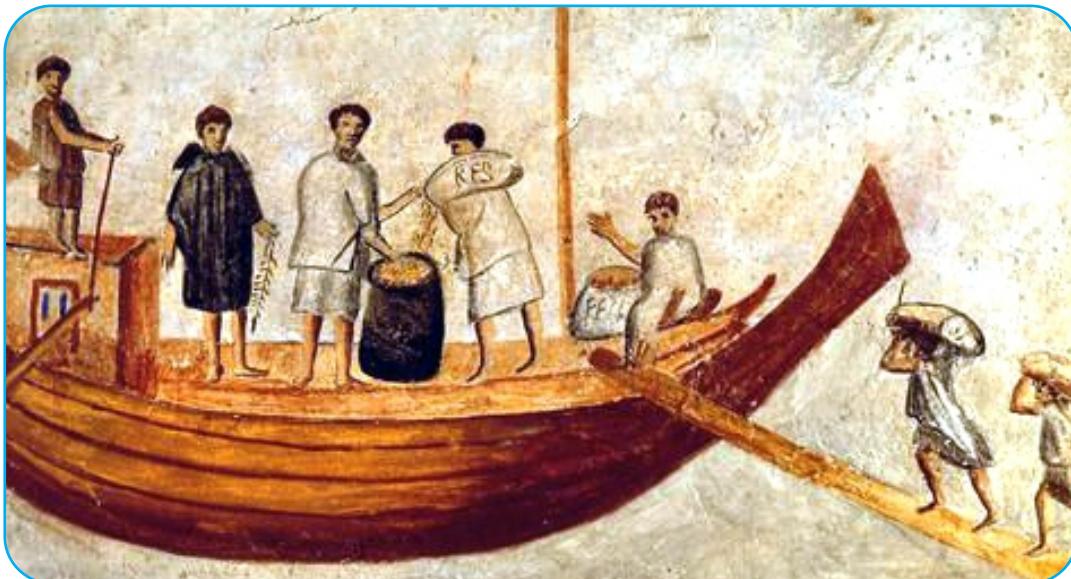

Skill: Activity

- Analyze that how Rome became prosperous enough to raise an army.

The culture of Ancient Rome was spread throughout Europe during its rule. As a result, Rome's culture still has an impact in the western world today. The basis for much of western culture comes from Ancient Rome, especially in areas such as Government, engineering, architecture, language, and literature.

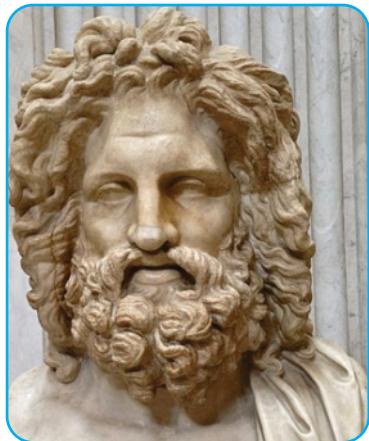

Trade was most important for Rome. Wheat got from Egypt, tin from Britannia, grapes from Gaul, and so on. The Romans built provincial capitals into fine cities, protected them from raids by barbarians.

Trade in Ancient Rome

The Romans believed in gods and goddesses who ruled over different areas of life. For example, Neptune was the god of the ocean, and the Romans prayed to him to protect them at sea.

In order to control their large empire, the Romans developed important ideas about law and Government. They developed the best army in the world at that time, and ruled by force. The empire was divided into provinces, each with a Governor plus civil and military support. With kings and emperors, a big problem is the order of succession. King's eldest son would take over, if he was capable of ruling.

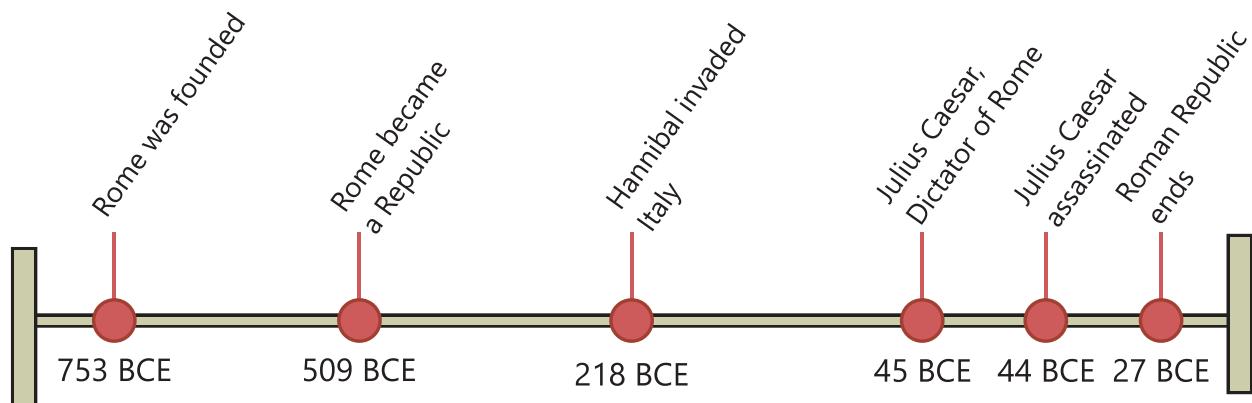

Neptune, the god of the Ocean

Fall of Rome

The fall of Rome generally refers to the fall of the western Roman Empire. It fell in 476 CE. The eastern Roman Empire, or the Byzantine Empire, would rule parts of eastern Europe for another 1000 years.

Roman Republic

Relationship Between Athens and Spartans

Geographically, cities of Athens and Sparta are very close to each other, but had very different values, lifestyles, and cultures. The differences were many.

The cities of Athens and Sparta were bitter rivals in ancient Greece. In 431 BCE, a war broke out between Athens and Spartans.

Athens Vs Spartans

Athens was an open society, and Sparta was a closed one. Athens was democratic, and Sparta was ruled by a select few.

Comparison Between the Architecture of Greeks and Romans

Greeks created large buildings that were mainly decorated on the outside but not so much on the inside.

On the other hand, Romans made sure their buildings were beautiful on the inside and the outside. For example, Romans used vaults, domes, and arches to improve their buildings'

Alexander the Great

Alexander the Great, was one of the greatest military leaders. He was born in 356 BCE in Pella, an ancient capital of Macedonia. Alexander was the son of Philip II, King of Macedonia. He was also the king of Macedonia.

When Alexander died at the age of 32, he ruled a territory that spanned three continents and covered nearly 2 million square miles. He was the King of his native Macedonia, Ruler of the Greece, the King of Persia and even an Egyptian Pharaoh. Due to his massive accomplishments, he was called Alexander the Great.

Alexander the Great

Reasons for Alexander's Plans to Conquer India

The Indian campaign of Alexander the Great, began in 327 BCE.

Alexander was attracted by the wealth and prosperity of India. He was interested to expand his rule till India. Curiosity, love of adventure and passion for conquest inspired Alexander to march towards India. The part of India which Alexander invaded is called the Punjab, or land of the five rivers. At that time, it was ruled by an Indian King, Porus.

Skill: Activity

- Investigate why Alexander the Great, wanted to conquer the world.

Aryans, Kushans and Guptas

Students' Learning Outcomes:

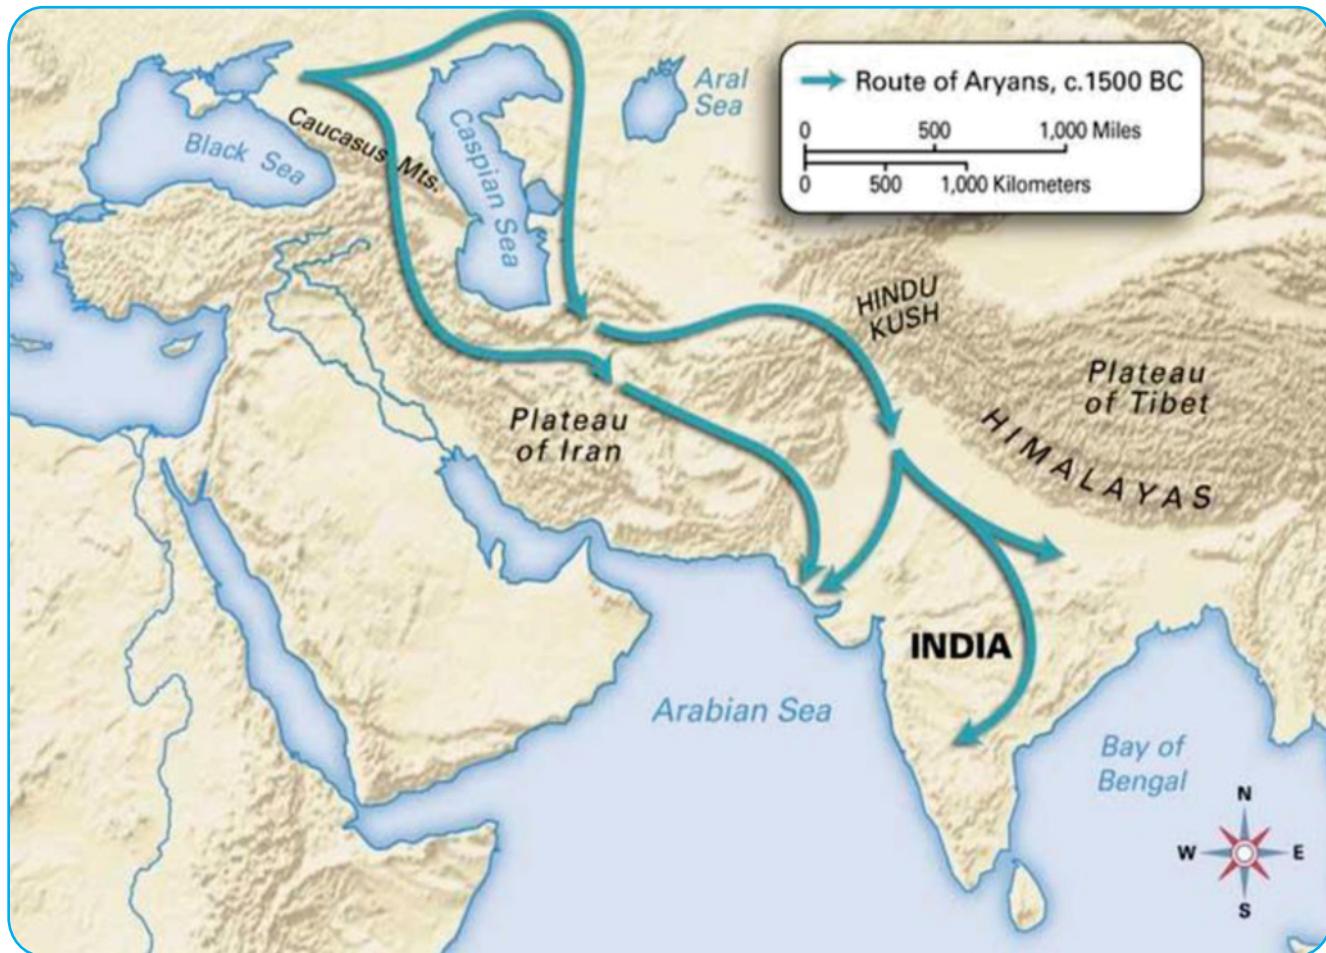

After completing this chapter, students will be able to:

- ▶ Trace the origin of Aryans, and explore why they came to India.
- ▶ Describe the social structure of Aryans.
- ▶ Describe when, and how, the Mauryan Empire was formed.
- ▶ Identify Ashoka as the Mauryan Ruler.
- ▶ Identify the greatest king of the Kushan Empire.
- ▶ Explain the contributions of Chandra Gupta-I.

Origin of Aryans

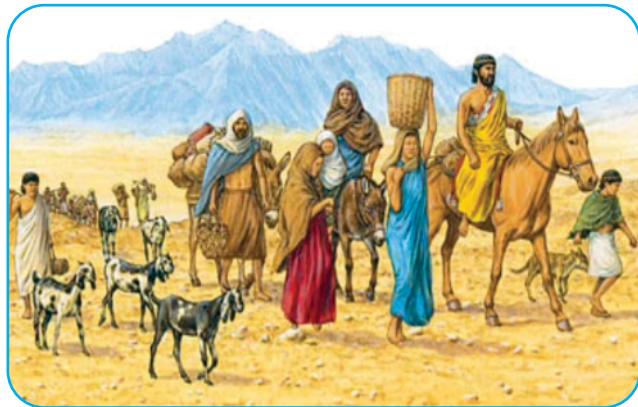

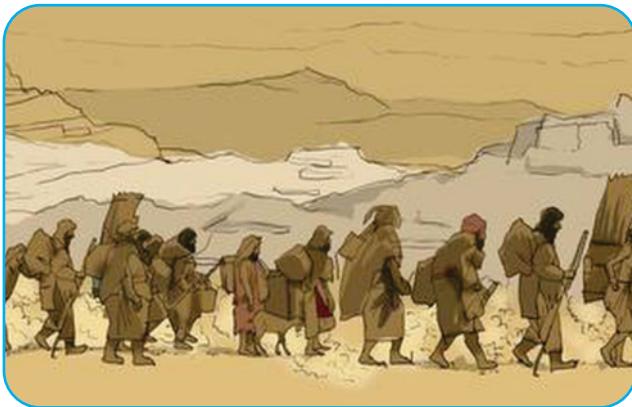

- After the decline of the Indus Valley Civilization, another glorious civilization flourished in India. The people who were responsible for the evolution of this civilization called themselves Aryans.
- Aryan is an English word derived from the term Arya, meaning "Noble" or "Lord". In the 19th century, the term was often used. The term has also been used to refer to a "race", originally in the sense of a distinct population.

Aryan Invasion of India

- The Aryans were a migratory group of people from Central Asia. They identified themselves as a "superior race".
- They conquered lands to spread their culture and civilization. They describe themselves as a group of free, noble, and civilized people.
- The Aryans comprised of quite different physical and cultural features. They were a white race.

- Before the time of the Aryan migration into India, there was a highly developed civilization in Ancient India known as the Indus Valley Civilization.

Aryans Arrival in India

- By 1500 BCE, the Aryans migrated into the Indian subcontinent. Coming from Central Asia, this large group of nomadic cattle herders crossed the Hindu Kush Mountains and came in contact with the Indus Valley Civilization. This was a large migration and used to be seen as an invasion.

Hindu Kush Mountains

- The languages of Iran and Afghanistan are related to the old Aryan language. Many modern languages of India and other countries of southern Asia also came from Aryans. These southern Asian languages make up what is called the Indo-Aryan language family. Aryans believed that they had developed most of the world's best ideas and inventions.
- The Aryan's society and system were sufficiently formed and the land they discovered near the Indus River was fantastic for them, so they chose to settle here.

- The Aryans fought with long bows and arrows and bronze axes. They rode into battle on chariots.

Skill: Activity

- Explore the reasons why Aryans were able to defeat the Indus Valley people

Why Aryans Came to India?

- According to historians, for some unknown reasons, the Aryans decided to move into India. It is further said that Aryans migrated from Central Asia to India due to:
 - the falling temperature.
 - shortage of food and water.
 - and end of greener pastures.
- The Aryans were semi-nomadic. The Khyber Pass forms the bridge between Central and South Asia. It has long been one of the most important trade routes and strategic military locations in the world. Alexander the Great, marched his army through the Khyber Pass in an unsuccessful attempt to capture India in 327 BCE. Around a thousand years earlier, the Aryans migrated through the Khyber Pass to settle in India. Later, it became a primary conduit for Silk Road trade.

Khyber Pass

Do You Know?

- The Khyber Pass is a mountain pass in the Hindu Kush Mountain in the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province of Pakistan, on the border of Afghanistan. It is an important pass between Afghanistan and Pakistan. The pass connects Kabul with Peshawar. Its length is about 53 kilometres. This pass has historically been the gateway for invasions of the Indian subcontinent from the northwest.

India in 327 BCE. Around a thousand years earlier, the Aryans migrated through the Khyber Pass to settle in India. Later, it became a primary conduit for Silk Road trade.

- Aryans migrated into India in many phases. Aryans migrated to India from Central Asia (as well as eastern Europe, western Russia and Persia). At this time the Indus Civilization had already been destroyed.
- The Aryans brought with them their own language, religious beliefs, and social system. They spoke an Indo-European language known as Sanskrit. English, German, Persian, Spanish, and French are some of the languages that are based on the Indo-European language.

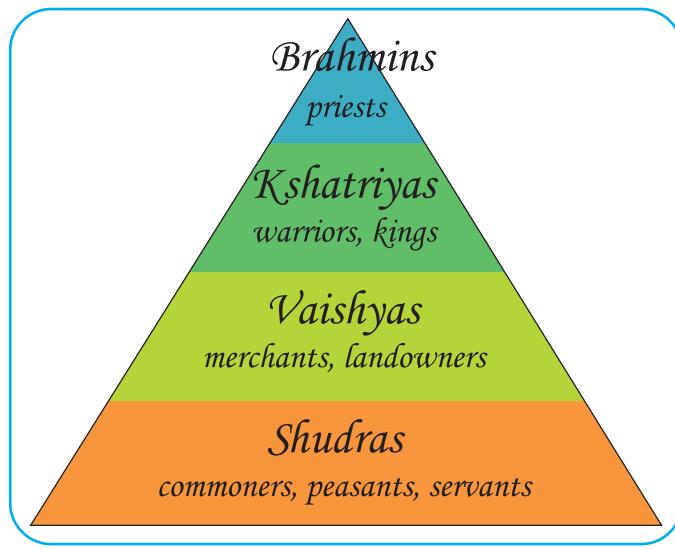

Aryans Impact on the Local Civilization

- The Aryans had a rich culture that still influences India today. The head of the household had gained respect primarily through trade, manufacturing, or farming.
- The Aryan society was patriarchal and much of the importance was placed on the male, therefore, an abundance of Aryan gods were males.
- The women in the Aryan culture were usually housewives and they were very skilled in weaving.
- Aryans also held great knowledge of heavy transportation using ox-carts.
- They were mostly interested in making chariots, tools and weapons.
- They had mastered in the art of using horse-chariots for war.

Social Structure of Aryans

The Aryans developed a system of social classes known as the caste system. Under this caste system, Aryans divided people, into four castes, or groups, according to their culture. These four castes were:

- Brahmans (priests and scholars)
- Kshatriyas (kings, governors and warriors)
- Vaishyas (cattle herders, agriculturists, artisans, and merchants),
- Shudras (labourers and service providers)

The caste system was a very important aspect of life in Ancient India. People were born into their caste for life. Their caste membership determined the work they did, the man or woman they could marry, and the people with whom they could eat. There were four primary castes:

Brahmin

Kshatriya

Vaishya

Shudra

1. The Brahmins

The highest caste in the Aryan caste system was the Brahmins. Brahmins were priests, scholars, judges, teachers, and landowners and were believed to understand the Dharma, or spiritual laws that governed the universe. Many lived in the temples apart from the rest of society. They followed strict rules for perfect ritual purity and spent much of their lives studying and teaching religion.

2. The Kshatriyas

The second caste included the Kshatriyas who were the rulers and warriors. They made everyday decisions and ran the Government. They were kings, generals, soldiers, and their families. The whole society counted on them for guidance and protection, and they were expected to learn religion from the Brahmins and maintain high standards of ritual purity.

3. The Vaishyas

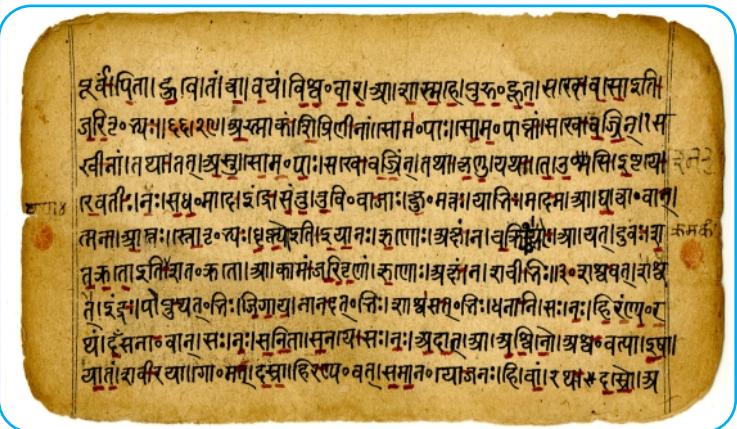

The third caste was the peasants, farmers and traders called Vaishyas. Sometimes Vaishyas had some leadership positions in smaller villages. This was a practical caste composed of crafts people, traders, merchants, and farmers. They had the important jobs of growing food and keeping the society's economy running smoothly.

4. The Shudras

The last caste was the labourers known as Shudras. They worked on farms owned by people in higher castes. Unlike the other three castes, the Shudras were not Aryan by blood. Therefore, they were the servants and labourers for the Brahmins, Kshatriyas, and Vaishyas.

Religious Belief System of the Aryans

- Aryans religion was very simple. After arriving in South Asia, they accepted some beliefs from the local people.
- They started worshipping anything as a god.
- In their religious books Vedas, hundreds of gods are mentioned. There are four Vedas: the Rig Veda, the Sama Veda, the Yajur Veda, and the Atharva Veda.
- Their famous gods were different gods like Sun, stars, fire, water, and Earth, etc.
- They had no buildings to perform religious rituals, hence, they prayed at the open.
- They sacrificed for meat, lentils, milk and other items to please their gods.

An extract from The Rig-Veda, written in Sanskrit (Early 19th century CE)

Economic System of the Aryan

- The family was regarded as the social and political unit. It was the nucleus of the social life of the early Aryans. The father was the head of the family.
- The Aryans had joint families. They ate both vegetable and animal foods. Rice, barley, bean, and sesamum were their staple food.
- They also ate bread, cake, milk, ghee, butter, and curd together with fruits. Fish, birds, goats, rams, and bulls were slaughtered for their food.
- The main occupation of the people was cattle rearing and their wealth was measured in the number of cattle.
- They practiced agriculture by clearing the forests.
- Metals used were copper, iron, and bronze.
- Few people worked as goldsmiths, potters, spinners, and carpenters.
- Gold coins called Nishka were used for transactions.

Mauryan Empire

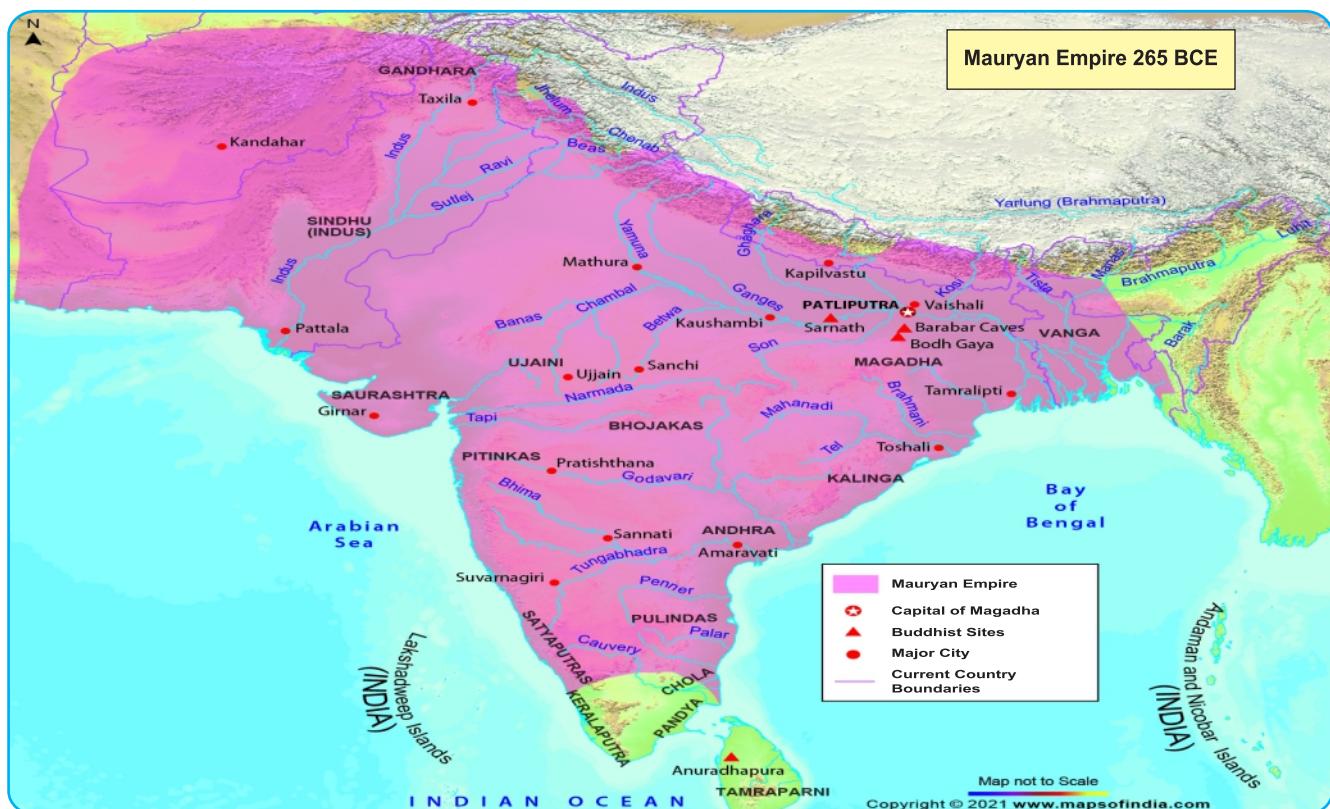

- The Mauryan Empire was the first major empire in the history of India from 321 BCE to 185 BCE.
- Chandragupta Maurya established the Mauryan Empire by overthrowing the Nanda dynasty and expanded the empire with the help of his royal advisor, Chanakya.

Chandragupta Maurya

Chanakya

By 316 BCE, the Mauryan Empire fully occupied north western parts of India, defeating the governors left by Alexander the Great. Chandragupta Maurya defeated Seleucus I, the founder of the Seleucid Empire. He gained the territories beyond Indus River.

- After Chandragupta Maurya, his son Bindusara started to rule from 297 BCE.
- Bindusara conquered the southern parts of India. After his death only Kalinga (modern Orissa) and parts of Tamil Nadu were left unconquered.

rich and fertile land. This was the only land left to conquer.

- The people of Kalinga refused to bow down to Ashoka's rule, however, they were also no match for Ashoka's army. It is said that in this battle thousands soldiers lost their lives and many civilians who rose up in defence were deported.
- After his conquest, Ashoka, while walking through the grounds, saw burnt houses and scattered corpses which made him sad.
- This was the war that changed the mind of Ashoka the Great.
- Ashoka devoted the rest of his life for public services. He became a Buddhist after this war.
- King Ashoka made many Rock edicts and Stupas in his empire.
- The present emblem of India was taken from his rock pillars.

Ashoka the Great, Adopted Buddhism

- Ashoka adopted Buddhism soon after and embraced the message of love, peace and kindness that Buddha taught.
- He made Buddhism his state religion, and preached it within his kingdom as well as in other parts of the world.
- He built thousands of stupas and viharas which can still be seen even today.

Vihara

- For the rest of his life, Ashoka pursued a policy of non-violence.
- Ashoka built many universities, water transit and irrigation systems for trade and agriculture.
- He treated his subjects as equals, regardless of their religion, politics and caste. He was also acclaimed for constructing hospitals for animals and renovating major roads throughout India.
- After 40 years of rule, at the age of 72, in 232 BCE, Ashoka breathed his last. He left behind a legacy as an able ruler, lawmaker, hero, monk and noble preacher.

Decline

After Ashoka's death in 232 BCE, the empire started to decline. The empire lasted just fifty years after his death. Brihadratha Maurya, the last Mauryan emperor was killed by his General Pushyamitra Shunga, who founded the Shunga's Empire in 185 BCE.

Skill: Activities

- Find causes of the decline of the Mauryan Empire.
- Examine why Ashoka was not known as the ruler of Ancient India for a long time.
- Compare Ashoka the Great with other Mauryan rulers.
- Evaluate a few contributions of Ashoka as a great King.
- Differentiate Mauryans from the Nada Kings.
- Examine the administration of the Mauryan rulers to run the vast Empire that spread from Bengal to Afghanistan.

The Kushan Empire

The Kushan Empire was first formed in the early 1st century Common Era. It was in eastern and northern Afghanistan and the north west of India. The Kushan were a nomadic people living in eastern Central Asia. Kujula Kadphises (Kadphises I) founded the Kushan Empire. The Kushans movement in India can be traced back to the first century CE during Kadphises I time.

Kadphises-I (30- 90 CE)

Kujula Kadphises laid the foundation of the Kushana Empire in India. He established his supremacy over Kabul, Kandahar and Afghanistan. He was succeeded by his son Vima Takto (90-113 CE) who expanded the empire into north west India.

Achievements of Kushans

- During the Kushans time, diplomatic contacts with the Roman Empire, Sassanid Persia, Aksumite Empire, and Han China were improved.
- The Kushans linked the seagoing trade of the Indian Ocean with the commerce of the Silk Road, via the Indus Valley.
- They introduced gold coins.

Gold Coins of Kushan Emperor Kanishka I

- They provided security that encouraged travel across the Khunjerab Pass. They also facilitated the spread of Buddhism to China.
- The Kushans are believed to have been predominantly practitioners of Zoroastrianism, one of the world's oldest monotheistic religions. Kushans also adopted aspects of Buddhist culture and, like the Egyptians, absorbed remnants of the Greek culture of the Hellenistic kingdoms.
- Trade prospered between India and China, and India and the Roman Empire. The Kushans controlled large parts of the Silk Route which led to the propagation of
- Buddhism into China. It was during this time that Buddhism began to spread to Korea and Japan also.
- During the Kushans time, three distinct schools of art flourished: Gandhara School in north west India, Amaravati School in Andhra and the Mathura School in the Ganges valley.

Silk Route

- Many towers, Chaityas, towns and beautiful sculptures were built under the patronage of the Kushana kings.
- Sanskrit literature began to be developed during this time.
- It is said that the Kushana period in Indian history was a perfect forerunner to the golden age of the Guptas.

Decline

After 225 CE, the Kushan Empire crumbled into a western half, which was almost immediately conquered by the Sassanid Empire of Persia, and an eastern half with its capital in Punjab occupied by the Guptas. The Khushan Empire collapsed around 350 CE.

The Gupta Empire

In the beginning of the fourth century, a powerful and unified central empire of Gupta appeared, which once again united the entire subcontinent. It remained approximately 320 CE to 550 CE. This Empire was founded by Chandragupta-I.

Do You Know?

- Chandragupta-I was educated in the military and arts at Taxila. As emperor, Chandragupta-I made his kingdom one of the largest in history.

Chandragupta-I (320–335 CE)

Chandragupta-I began a period of overall prosperity and growth. He started a rapid expansion of the Gupta Empire and soon established himself as the first ruler of the empire. At the end of his reign, the boundary of the Gupta Empire already extended to Allahabad.

Samudragupta (335 – 375 CE),

Samudragupta was son of Chandragupta-I. He continued the development of the kingdom. After conquering the remainder of north India, Samudragupta turned to south India. He added a portion of it to his empire by the end of his southern campaign. It is generally believed that during his time, the Gupta Empire spanned from the Himalayas to Brahmaputra River.

Chandragupta-II (375 – 415 CE)

Like Samudragupta, Chandragupta-II was an able leader and skilled administrator. He was a great patron of art and culture too. He further expanded his kingdom to the coastline of the Arabian Sea. He also took care to strengthen the navy. The seaports of Tamralipta and Sopara consequently became busy hubs of maritime trade.

Contributions of Guptas

- The time of the Gupta Empire is referred to as golden age of India in science, mathematics, architecture, astronomy, religion, and philosophy.

Architecture of Guptas

- The Gupta Empire stretched across northern, central and parts of southern India. The period is noted for its achievements in the arts, architecture, sciences, religion, and philosophy.
- During Guptas time, people were given many facilities of life. Commodities were affordable for people and the empire had prosperity.
- Gold and silver coins were issued in great numbers which is a general indicative of the health of the economy.

Gold and Silver Coins of Guptas

- Guptas kings knew that the well-being of the empire lie in maintaining a cordial relationship between the various communities.
- Jainism flourished in northern Bengal, Gorakhpur and Gujarat. Several Jain establishments existed across the empire and Jain Councils were a regular occurrence.
- Trade and commerce flourished both within the country and outside. Silk, cotton, spices, medicine, priceless gemstones, pearl, precious metals and steel were exported by sea.
- Great tact and foresight were shown in the governance of the vast empire. The efficiency of their martial system was well known.
- The large kingdom was divided into smaller provinces and administrative heads were appointed to take care of them.
- The kings maintained discipline and transparency in the bureaucratic process. Criminal law was mild, capital punishment was unheard of and judicial torture was not practised. People could move around freely.

Decline of the Empire

After the death of Chandragupta-II, the later rulers could not control and manage the vast empire. Thus it gradually declined.

Do You Know?

- During the reign of Chandragupta-II, Gupta Empire maintained a large army consisting of 500,000 infantry, 50,000 cavalry, 20,000 charioteers and 10,000 elephants along with a powerful navy with more than 1200 ships.

Skill: Activities

Rise of Islamic Civilization

Students' Learning Outcomes:

After completing this chapter, students will be able to:

- Explain the role of Hazrat Muhammad رَسُولُ اللَّهِ كَاتِمُ الْأَيْمَنِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ in spreading Islam.
- Describe how Khulafah-e-Rashideen رَضِوانُ اللَّهِ تَعَالَى عَلَيْهِمَا جَمِيعُهُم spread Islam after Hazrat Muhammad صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ .

Role of Hazrat Muhammad in Spreading Islam

Early Life

Hazrat Muhammad was born in 571 CE in Makkah. Hazrat Muhammad's father, Hazrat Abdullah, had died before his birth. His mother, Hazrat Bibi Amina, also passed away in around 577 CE, when he was just six years old. His grandfather, Abdul Mutalib, then took the responsibility of raising him, but he also died two years later. Hazrat Muhammad's uncle, Abu Talib then devoted his life to raising his nephew, and it is said that they both loved each other just as a father and a son would.

Al-Sadiq and Al-Amin

As Hazrat Muhammad grew up, he became an honest caravan trader. The Arabs referred to him by the names of "Al-Sadiq" (the Truthful) and "Al-Amin" (the Trustworthy).

Marriage with Hazrat Khadija رضي الله تعالى عنها

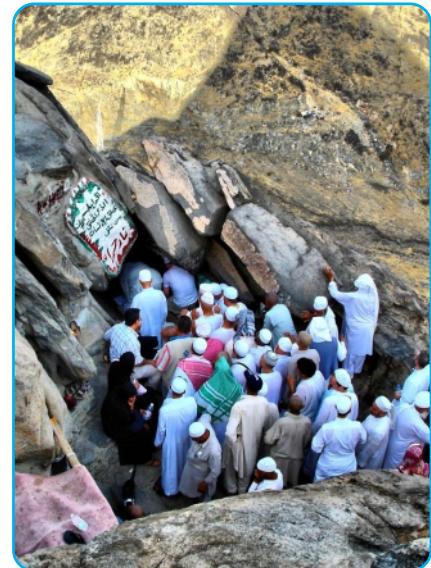

When Hazrat Muhammad was 25 years old, a wealthy widow named Hazrat Khadija (رضي الله تعالى عنها) (555-619 CE), sent him with one of her trade caravans for business. Hazrat Khadija رضي الله تعالى عنها was so impressed by his honesty, that she sent him marriage proposal, which he accepted.

As Hazrat Muhammad رضي الله تعالى عنه reached his late thirties, he began worshipping in a cave named "Hira", in the mountain "Jabal-al-Nour" (Mountain of Light), near Makkah. It is said that one fateful day, in 610 CE, the angel Hazrat Gabriel عليه السلام approached him with the first revelation from Allah Almighty.

Jabal-al-Nour

Cave Hira

It is said that Hazrat Muhammad رضي الله تعالى عنه was initially perplexed and scared. He came back home, shivering with fear. It was only his wife Hazrat Khadija رضي الله تعالى عنها who comforted him and took him to her cousin Warqah Bin Nawfal (a Christian Scholar), who recognized and told him that he is a Rasool رضي الله تعالى عنه of Allah Almighty.

Skill: Activity

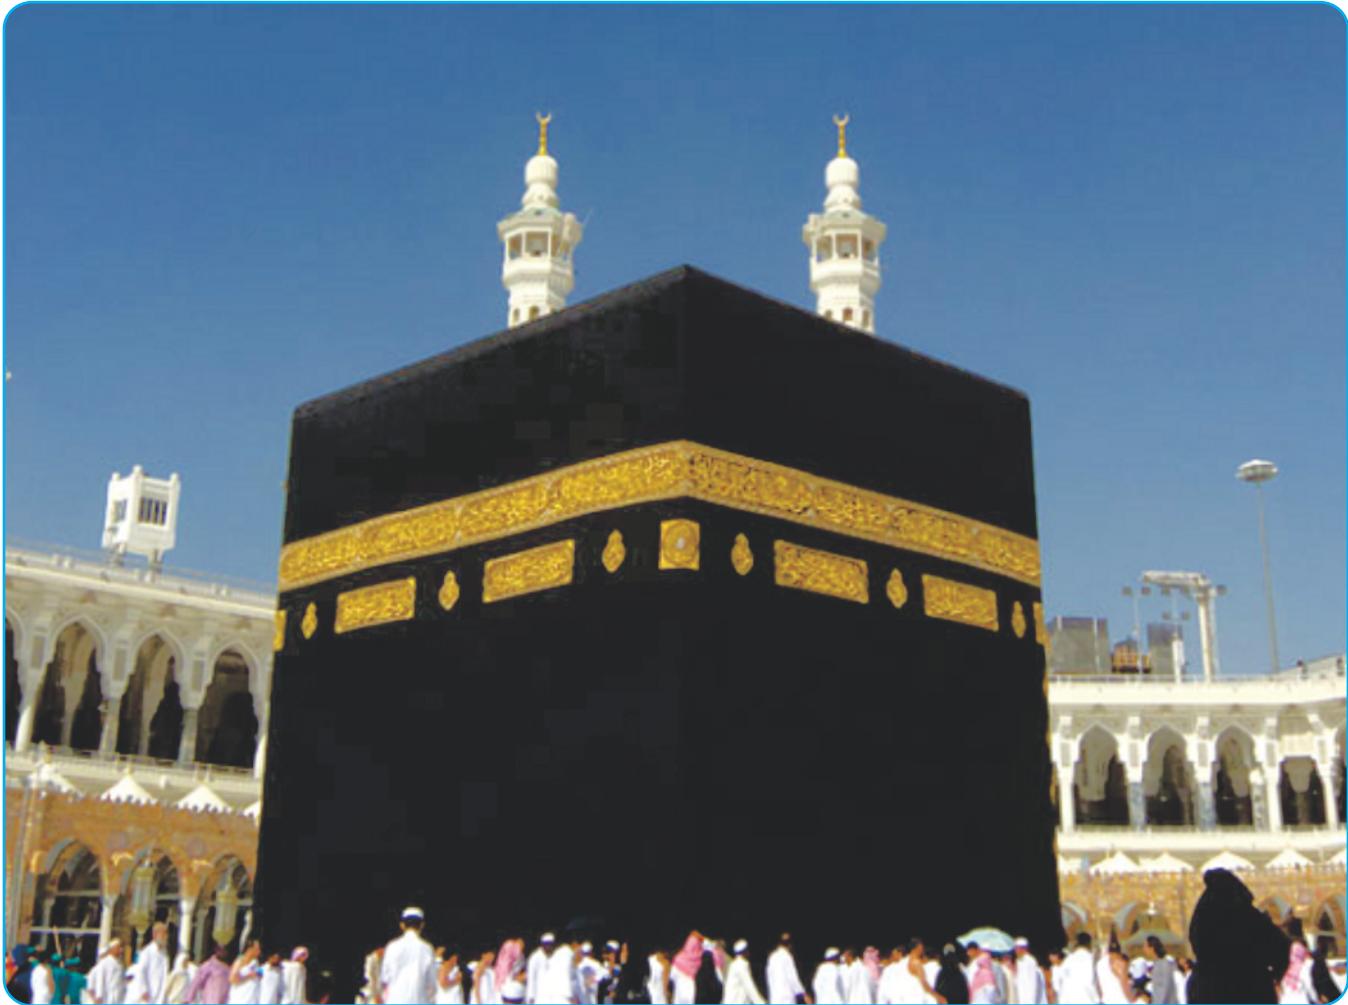

- Infer the message of Allah Almighty through Hazrat Muhammad رضي الله تعالى عنه.

Oppression of the Makkans

- Hazrat Muhammad رضي الله تعالى عنه began preaching the Oneness of Allah Almighty to his family and close friends.
- Hazrat Khadija رضي الله تعالى عنها was the first lady who accepted Islam and the first male who accepted Islam was his close friend Hazrat Abu Bakr رضي الله تعالى عنه.
- It was after some time in 613 CE that Hazrat Muhammad رضي الله تعالى عنه began preaching openly, and he رضي الله تعالى عنه faced severe resistance.

from the Makkans.

- Makkah hosted many idols at the Holy Kaaba and their economy was mostly based on pilgrims pouring in from all corners of the Arabian Peninsula to worship these idols, whom Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ considered false gods.

Holy Kaaba, Makkah

- The Makkans went to all lengths, from bribery to physical torture to stop him, but he would not give in.
- Notwithstanding with Hazrat Muhammad's growing influence, rival Quraysh Tribe boycotted the Banu Hashim Clan (616-619 CE) to force them into withdrawing their support for Hazrat Muhammad .
- Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ and his small community were driven from their homes, forced to live in separate quarters on the outskirts of town, and boycotted. Yet they preserved in their commitment to follow the guidance of Allah Almighty. They were instructed to suffer injustice with dignity.

- Quraysh Tribe made conditions for Hazrat Muhammad رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ and his followers quite difficult but, in the end, the boycott was lifted.

Do You Know?

According to Muslim tradition, Hazrat Muhammad's wife Hazrat Khadija رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ was the first to believe that he رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ is a Rasool رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ . Around 613 CE, Hazrat Muhammad رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ began to preach to the public.

Travel to Town of Taif

- Hazrat Muhammad رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ faced continual rejection in Makkah and so he رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ turned his attention towards the town of Taif in 620 CE.
- He رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ was initially welcomed there but the people rejected his message and, in the end, he رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ was forced to run from the city as a wild mob of street boys pelted stones at him, and he رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ barely made it out of the city alive.
- The angel Hazrat Gabriel رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ appeared to Hazrat Muhammad رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ afterwards, asking for his permission to destroy the town, but he رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ refused, saying that he رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّينَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَىٰ أَهْلِهِ وَأَحْنَابِهِ وَسَلَّمَ was sure that their children would accept Islam later on.

Death of his Uncle Abu Talib and his Wife Hazrat Khadija رضي الله تعالى عنها

- Hazrat Khadija رضي الله تعالى عنها and Hazrat Abu Talib died in 619 CE (a year remembered as the "Year of Sorrow" by the Muslims).
- Hazrat Abu Talib's position was taken by another uncle of Hazrat Muhammad's رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّنَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ Abu Lahab, who hated him, and lacking any support from his clan. So, Hazrat Muhammad رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّنَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ was completely vulnerable.

Migration to Medina

- Tired of Makkans' oppression, some Muslims had already migrated to Abyssinia (Ethiopia) in around 615 CE.
- The Rasool رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّنَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ and the majority of his followers, migrated to Medina for escaping Makkans' cruelty in 621 CE, when some citizens of Yathrib (modern-day Medina) invited the Rasool رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّنَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ to their city.

Medina, Saudi Arabia

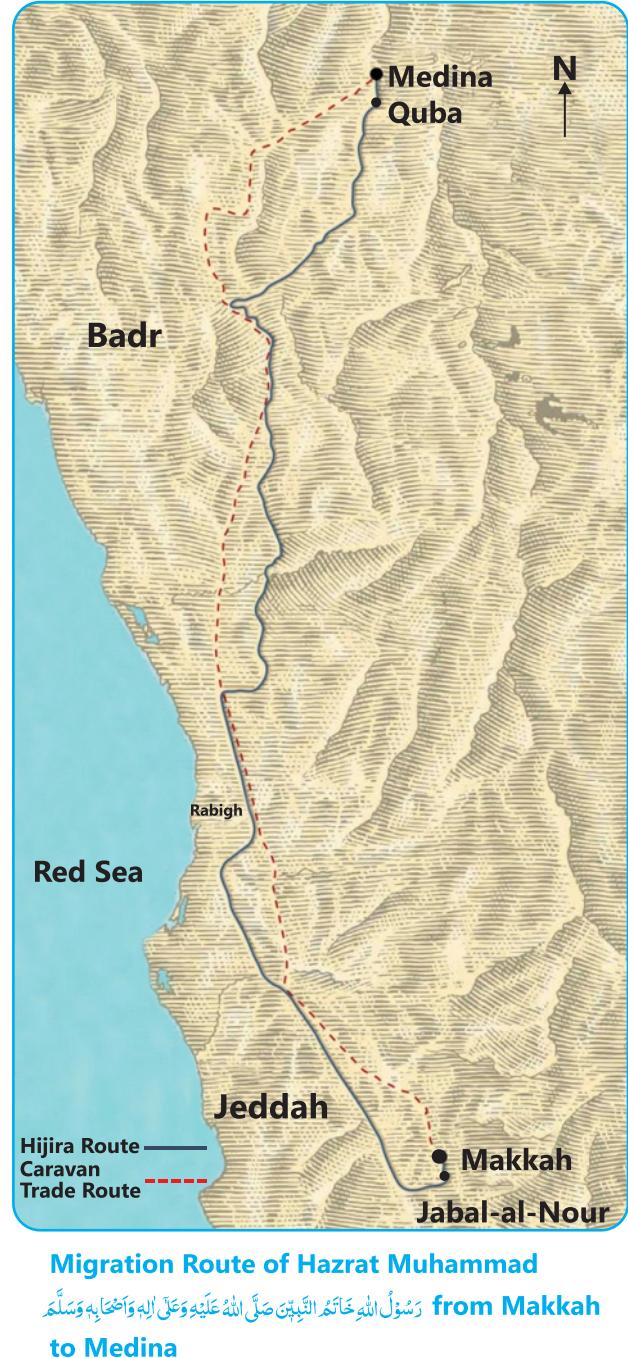

- Impressed by his message, they wanted the Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ to act as their ruler.
- Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ and his companions complied and migrated in groups to the city of Medina.

Journey with Hazrat Abu Bakr Siddiq رضي الله تعالى عنه

- Narrowly escaping an attempt on his life, Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ left Makkah with his close friend Hazrat Abu Bakr رضي الله تعالى عنه .
- After an unsafe journey with the Makkans chasing them, they entered Medina in 622 CE.
- This migration (Hijrat) is so important in Islamic history that the Islamic Lunar Calendar considers this as year AH (After Hijri).

Spreading Islam

- With his newly assumed role as the leader of Medina, Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ became more than just a preacher; he ﷺ became a leader.
- Medina turned into a strong kingdom with standards of justice and unity never seen before in Arabia.
- During his ten years in Medina, Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ became more than just a spiritual leader.
- He ﷺ put his administrative and political skills to good use, effectively acting as the town's leader.

- Islam was evolving from a religious movement to a powerful political one.

Masjid-e-Nabwi ﷺ

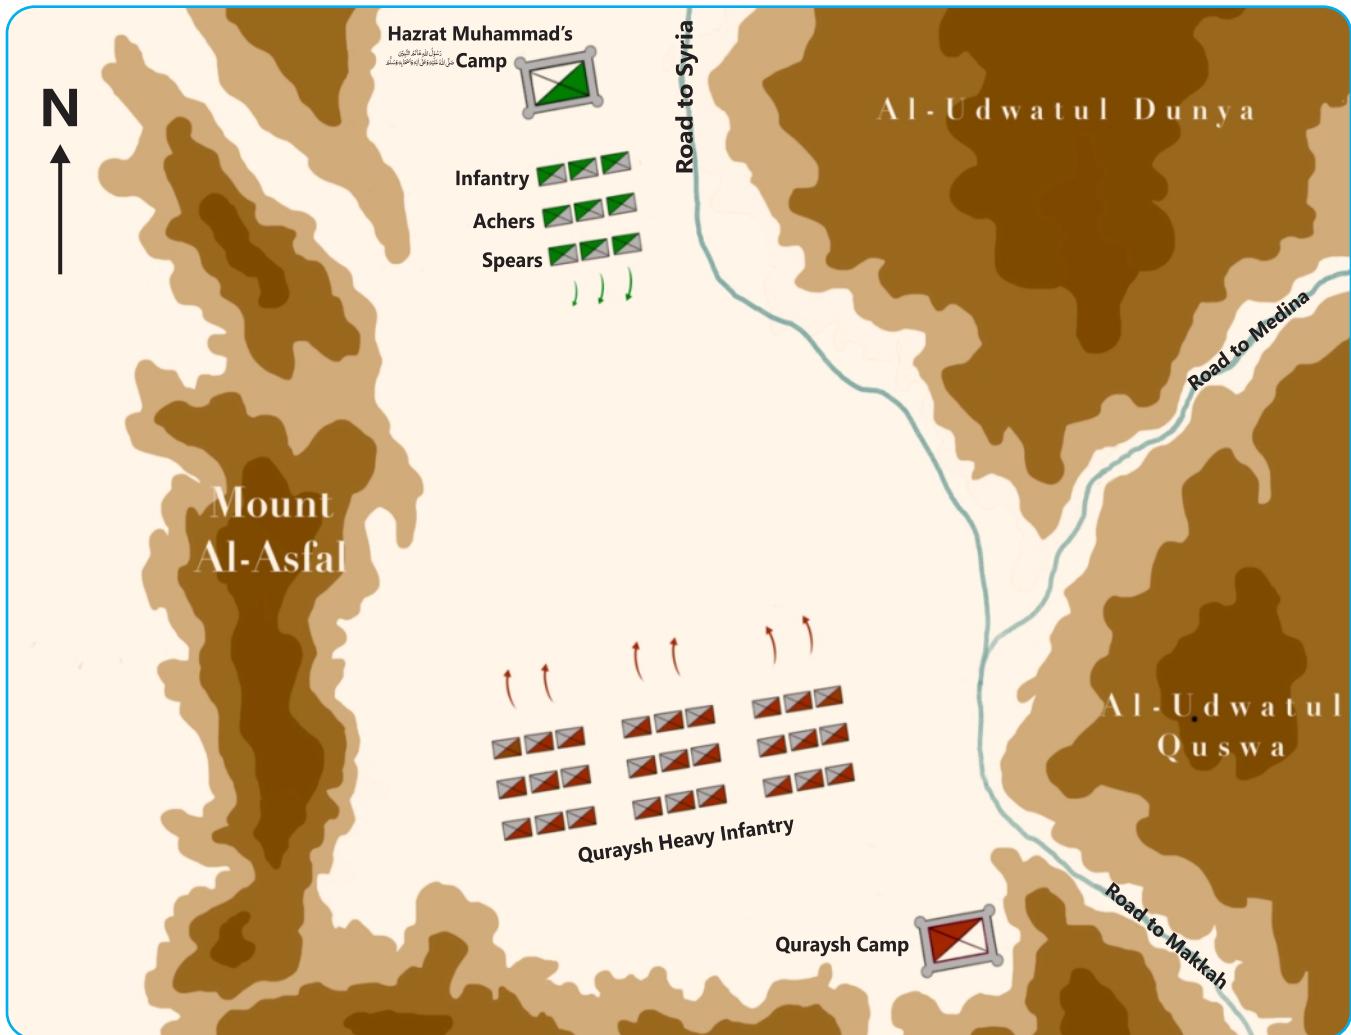

- Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ established a new community worship place Masjid-e-Nabwi ﷺ in Medina.
- The regular activities of preaching continued but Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ now had two distinct advantages over his former life: political power and an army of devoted supporters.

Masjid-e-Nabwi ﷺ

Battle of Badr

- From their newfound base, the Muslims wanted to strike back at their former oppressors.
- The infidels of Makkah united against the Muslims and they took an army of around 1000 soldiers and left to Medina for battle.

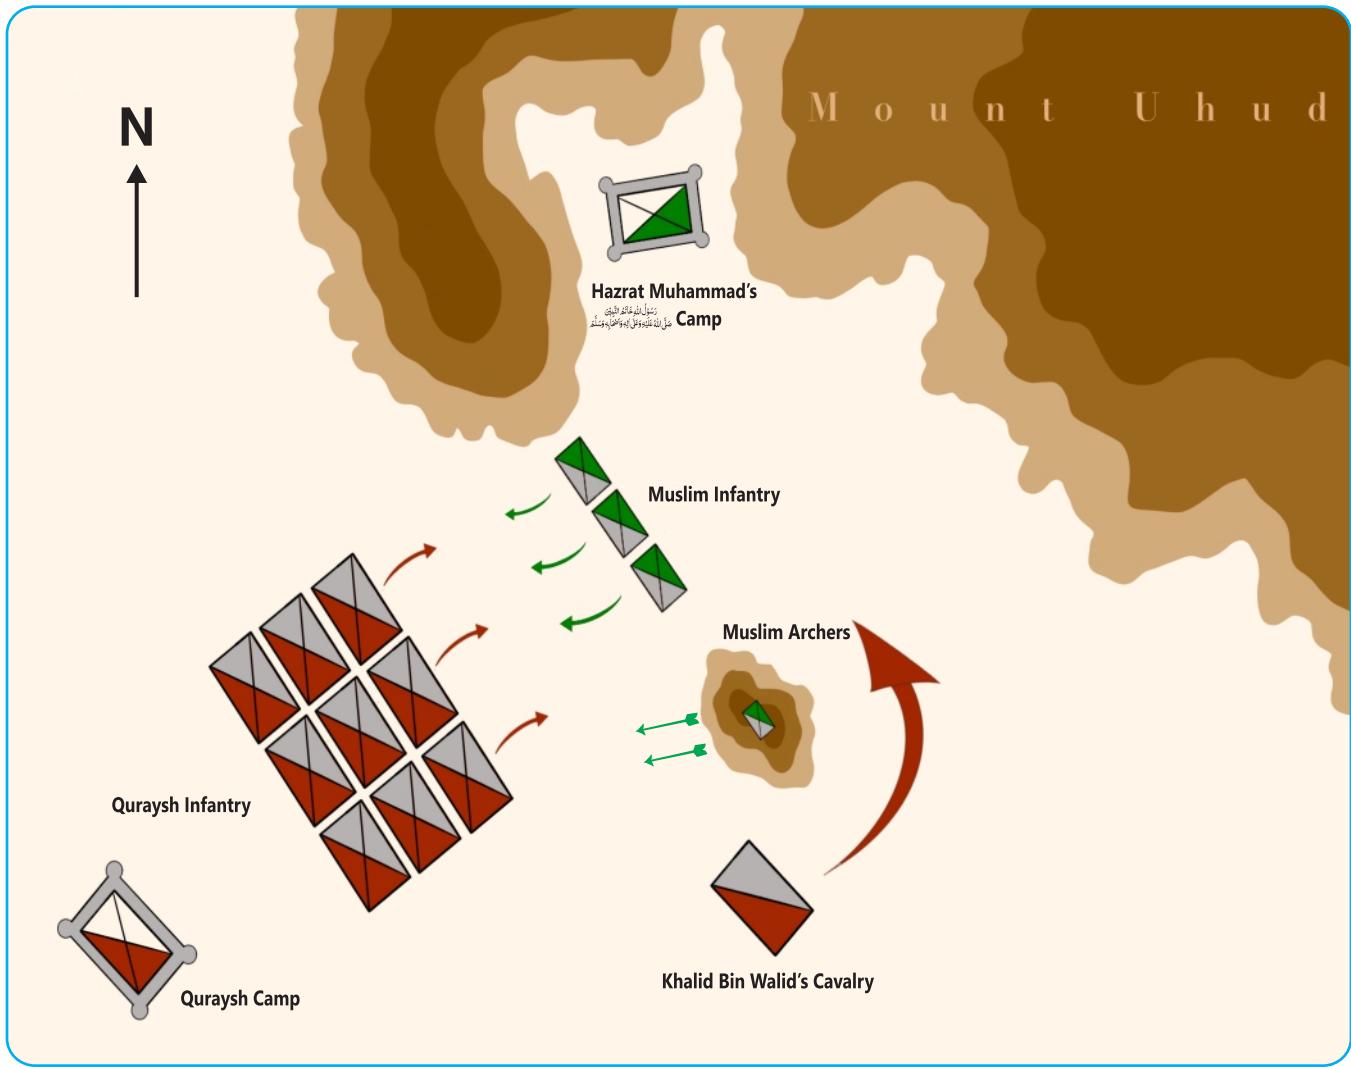

Battle of Badr in 624 CE

- As soon as Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ got this information, he رَسُولُ اللَّهِ خَاتَمُ النَّبِيِّنَ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَعَلَى الْأَئْمَاءِ وَسَلَّمَ went out with an army of 313 people to stop them and the two armies faced each other in the field of Badr in 624 CE.
- The Muslim got decisive victory over Makkans in this battle.

Battle of Uhud

- The Arabs had a strong sense of pride; had the Makkans not struck back after their defeat at Badr.
- The Makkans appeared weak and vulnerable to their neighbours. It was a fatal situation for them in Arabia.
- The following year, in 625 CE, another huge army was dispatched from the Makkah, under the leadership of Abu Sufyan. He decided not to lay siege to Medina but to draw out the Muslims in open battle.

Battle of Uhud in 625 CE

- His forces camped near the Mountain of Uhud, from where they began harassing their foes; this strategy worked and the Muslim army marched out to face the enemy.
- Initially, the battle went well for the Muslims; the Makkans deserted the field and fled in panic, leaving behind their camps with all their supplies.
- Seeing the enemy flee and victory just moments away, some of the Muslim youths assigned to one of the fronts ignored the orders of Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ and left their position and started collecting booty.
- The Makkans got an opportunity, and their cavalry suddenly struck in a surprise attack on the Muslims.
- The Muslims suffered severe casualties; even Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ was injured. After that the Muslims retreated forcefully, but the Makkans did not pursue them. They returned back to Makkah.

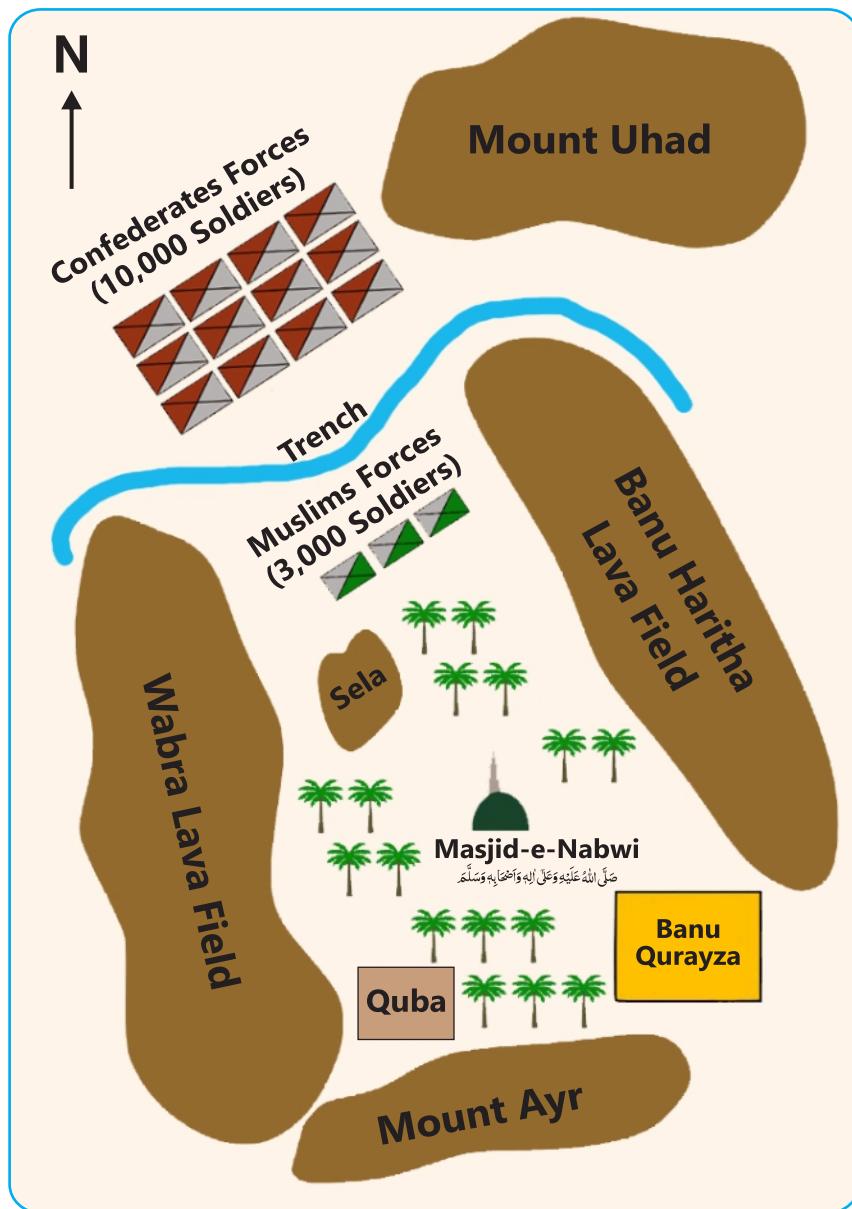

Skill: Activities

- Evaluate some hardships that Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ faced in the advent of Islam.

Battle of Khandaq (Trench)

- In 627 CE, the Muslims faced an even greater threat from a alliance. Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ had banished two Jewish tribes, Banu Qurayza and Banu Nazir. They had broken the Treaty of Medina, a treaty of alliance and non-violence formulated by Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ when he ﷺ first assumed the role of Muslim leader.
- These tribes, alongside other Jewish tribes from Khaybar, and other minor Arabian tribes allied with the Makkans and marched towards Medina.
- On the advice of Hazrat Sulman Farsi رضي الله تعالى عنه, the Muslims dugout a trench around Medina to save themselves. This strategy was unknown to the Arabs and provided the Muslims with a huge tactical advantage. Muslims were just 3,000 and enemy forces were 10,000.
- The siege of Medina, also referred to as the Battle of Trench (627 CE), lasted for around 30 days. The allied forces lost their patience and they returned back to Makkah. Consequently, the Muslims won this battle.

Conquest of Makkah

- Conquest of Makkah also known as Fateh Makkah is one of the greatest events that took place during the holy month of Ramadan. This is a great show of courage and bravery.
- In 628 CE, when the Muslims wished to go on a pilgrimage or Hajj to the Holy Kaaba, they were denied entry by the Makkans who were fearful of their growing power but, instead of conflict, the matter was concluded with the Treaty of Hudaybiyyah, which gave the Muslims permission to perform Umrah.
- Within two years, the Makkans breached the Treaty of Hudaybiyyah. In 630 CE, the Muslim army approached Makkah; the doors were opened and the city surrendered.
- Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ entered Makkah and offered amnesty to all those people who took refuge either in the Holy Kaaba or Abu Sufyan's house.
- Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ then went on to destroy all of the idols in the Holy Kaaba, officially declaring it as the holy site for Islam.

Jabal-e-Rehmat, Arafat

- Hazrat Muhammad ﷺ later on performed his first and last pilgrimage or Hajj in 632 CE, and it was also where he announced that the divine revelation, Holy Quran, had been completed. At last, he met his Allah Almighty in 632 CE.
